The Appleton Professional Policemen's Association, for the second year, is sponsoring an appearance in Appleton of the Miller-Johnson Circus.

There will be performances at 2 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. June 3 of "an international aggregation of world famous stars featured in the two-hour spectacle."

The circus appears throughout the United States under the sponsorship of law enforcement agencies. Proceeds in Appleton are used to support youth activities.

A family ticket plan, under which the entire family is admitted at a cost of $7 is available with tickets purchased in advance. Tickets should be ordered by mail to Post Office Box 505, Appleton. The cost of tickets purchased at the gate will be $3.50 for adults, $1.75 for children.

The feature attraction of the circus is Pat Anthony, billed as the country's greatest wild animal trainer, who will present the world's largest mixed group of performing lions and tigers.

Wally Naughtin, another outstanding American trainer will perform with his trained bears; Wallace Ross, the greatest all-round animal trainer in the circus, will have elephants, horses, ponies, camels and a black leopard doing his bidding.

Oscar Cristiani, Italian born American citizen, scion of one of the greatest circus families in the world will offer his performing elephants.

In intricate routines from France come the beautiful Doly Sisters; Italy and Spain are the countries from which the Ferronis, balancing stars, and Semone, chimpanzee trainer come. Cuba is homeland for the fabulous Flying Farias. Czechoslovakie, Holland, Germany, England, Mexico, Hungary, Arabia and Egypt all have big-top representatives in the 1973 Miller-Johnson Circus.

The circus will be set up at Goodland Field.

Courts

A 22-year-old Appleton man was fined $255 and ordered to attend group dynamics traffic safety school after he was found guilty Friday of disorderly conduct, driving while intoxicated and making an illegal U-turn.

Carl J. Baumgart, 1228 W. Eighth St., was convicted of the charges when he appeared before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

The defendant was arrested for disorderly conduct after police said he picked a fight with Paul Schuster, 26, Madison, at a W. College Avenue bar last Saturday night. A door window at an adjacent tavern was broken during the fight.

Baumgart was arrested for the illegal turn in the 500 block of W. College Ave. early April 20, while the other driving charge stemmed from a late April 14 arrest in the 200 block of S. State Street.

Steven C. Waldo, 21, 916 S. Park Ave., Neenah, was placed on probation for one year after he pleaded guilty Friday to one count of marijuana possession.

Waldo entered the plea before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2, where another count of amphetamines possession was dismissed by request of the prosecution.

Both charges stemmed from an arrest at Waldo's car in the 100 block of N. State Street late Sunday.

In a Thursday appearance before Schaefer, Waldo pleaded guilty to one count of hit-and-run driving, relating to a two-car accident at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Sixth Street on March 10.

Schaefer assessed a $100 fine for that count.

A July 18 nonjury trial was set Friday for Mary Frye, 22, Bear Creek, who pleaded not guilty to one count each of theft and driving without a valid license, when she appeared before Judge Urban P. Van Susteren in Outagamie County Court Branch 1.

The theft charge related to a Jan. 27 incident at the Barbara King residence, 123 S. Appleton St., in which the defendant was charged with stealing $12 from the wallet of an Appleton man, John Miller.

Joseph W. Hooyman, 40, route 4, Appleton, was fined $100 after he was found guilty Friday of a traffic violation by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Hooyman was charged with speeding in a school zone on County Trunk KK at Darboy the morning of March 22.

Donald P. Fird, 45, 320 S. John St., Kimberly, was fined $175 and ordered to attend group dynamics traffic safety school after he was found guilty Friday of driving while intoxicated.

Fird, who entered a no contest plea before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2, was arrested after driving in the 300 and 400 blocks of S. Walnut Street by Appleton police early last Saturday.

A June 7 pretrial conference was set Friday in the case of Bruce T. Forbeck, 22, 1421 N. Division St., after he pleaded not guilty to four traffic violations before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

The charges, which stemmed from a high speed chase early Wednesday on Appleton's west side, include driving after revocation, reckless driving, attempting to elude and making an illegal U-turn. Forbeck's bail was continued at $300.

Terrance J. Berken, 18, route 4, De Pere, entered not guilty pleas to two counts of theft when he appeared Friday before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Berken was charged with stealing unspecified numbers of tires and gallons of gasoline in separate incidents March 31 and April 10 at Seymour.

Schaefer set bond at $200 and scheduled a May 15 pretrial conference.

Richard Wachowiak, 19, 2500 S. Jefferson St., was charged with one count of marijuana possession when he appeared Friday before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

The defendant was arrested after police said he was involved in a fight with another man in front of City Hall earlier in the day.

Schaefer continued the matter to Monday.

Jerry Neuman, 18, route 1, Appleton was charged with one count of obstructing an officer when he appeared Friday before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Police said the defendant produced false identification when his vehicle was stopped for having no directional lights, at the intersection of Locust Street and Badger Avenue on April 22.

Schaefer continued the case to Monday.

A welfare fraud charge against a 25-year-old Appleton woman was dismissed Friday by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Betty Howard, 806 W. Bell Ave., was charged with misusing welfare funds intended for the payment of rent between July 1 and Sept. 1, 1972. She received $125 per month for these payments.

The prosecution moved for the dismissal after learning that the defendant had agreed to sign a wage assignment in order to make restitution to the county Department of Social Services.

Theater review

Powerful, shattering

BY BONNIE WAGNER

The current Lawrence University presentation of Peter Weiss' beautiful and brutal play, "Marat/Sade," is as powerful and shattering as any professional production.

The set, which is of the bathing room of the Charenton Asylum in 1808, opens into the auditorium, thus helping to include the audience. Its colors are brown and gray, creating a dreary, depressing atmosphere. The baggy white uniforms of the inmates proclaim their anonymity. The attendant nuns seem kindly at first, but soon we learn they are really jailers with little compassion for their charges.

"MARAT/SADE" is a play through Saturday. Directed by Mesrop Kesdekian of the LU theater staff. Music director, Keith Montrass. Production designer, J. C. Woodruff. Costume designer, Nonilee Raphael. Technical director, J. C. Woodruff.

Principal cast: Charlotte Corday (Bonnie Morris), Jean Paul Marat (Thomas A. Ehringer), Marquis de Sade (Paul M. Doepeke)

The acting is impassioned but controlled. The essential humanity of both Marat and de Sade is perceptively depicted by Thomas Ehlinger and Paul Doepeke. They debate whether the search for pleasure or the search for proper sacrifice is the right way to live.

Bonnie Morris as Charlotte Corday, Marat's assassin, must portray a clear-headed activist through an inmate-character who is suffering from sleeping sickness and melancholia.

This same ironical divergence is present in Jacques Roux (Paul Nelson). He must play a spiritual lover through the personality of a sex fiend.

Certainly all the actors and particularly director Mesrop Kesdekian must be commended for their considerable energy and great skill, obvious in the excellent production of a difficult and complex drama.

Interestingly, Kesdekian's colleague, Mark Malinauskas, is the Herald, a kind of rhyme-speaking master of ceremonies who explains the characters and action of the play.

Still, "Marat/Sade" would be little more than a poetic debate and a grim pantomime were it not for the music and dancing. While the small orchestra, directed by Keith Montrass, was often shrill and too loud, the four singer/dancers were good musically and often quite necessary for comic relief.

Though less than a decade old, this play has attained near classic status. It is also one of those rare creations that is equally loved by critics and the public.

It appears one more time, at 8 p.m. today, in Stansbury Theatre.

Police & fire beat

Police are investigating a Friday afternoon break-in at a dentist's office, in which a male suspect was found on the premises after closing hours.

Police gave these details:

Dr. John LeFevre locked the upstairs office at 1408 N. Meade St., about 5:40 p.m., and returned 10 minutes later.

He then noticed fresh pry marks on the office door and when he entered, he heard someone in the rest room. A man called out from the rest room, saying he would be right out, and when the man did come out, he had a handkerchief in front of his face, apparently trying to hide his identity.

The man quickly left the office, heading west toward a supermarket. He was described as 6 feet tall and weighing 200 pounds, about 40 to 45-years-old, having a ruddy complexion and wearing a beige topcoat.

Nothing was reported missing from the office.

An Appleton policeman's wife escaped injury after her car went out of control near Medina early Wednesday, leading the officer to believe that the accident was due to vandalism to the car.

Francis A. Gitter, 732 W. Spring St., reported Friday that an unknown vandal removed the hubcap of the left rear tire of his 1967 model station wagon between 1 a.m. and 2 a.m. Wednesday and then loosened the bolts before replacing the hubcap.

When Mrs. Gitter headed west on U.S. 10 near Medina, the tire apparently loosened and the vehicle swerved out of control, crossed the roadway and entered a ditch. She was not injured and there was no major damage to the auto.

Gitter said the right rear hubcap fell off between Appleton and Medina, and he said that this tire also was probably tampered with.

It was the second report of vandalism at the Gitter residence within the past two weeks. On the other occasion, an unknown driver drove up onto the terrace in front of the house and spun his wheels, leaving a set of deep ruts. No damage estimate was given from that incident

Gonococcal arthritis caused by VD germ

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was told by a relative that the cause of arthritis has been found, but because it is venereal disease, the information is not being publicized. Is there any truth to this, or is it just another one of the stories that goes around?—J.P.

There is some truth to it—but VD isn't the cause of arthritis. There isn't any single cause.

Your relative undoubtedly referred to some interesting, but also somewhat frightening, information which emerged from the meeting of the Arthritis Foundation in Pittsburgh not long ago.

There are many forms of arthritis, and one of them is "gonococcal arthritis," which is caused by the same germ that causes gonorrhea, the most prevalent of the venereal diseases.

Dr. Frank R. Schmid of Northwestern University warned that this type of arthritis comes on suddenly and can cause extremely rapid destruction of joints if it is not treated as quickly as possible.

The amount of this type of arthritis seems to be increasing rapidly, which sounds reasonable enough since we already know, beyond any doubt, that venereal disease is spreading out of control.

If the disease is treated soon enough, it stops both the gonorrhea and the arthritis, but the unhappy aspect is that it is much more prevalent in women than in men. This is because, as I've pointed out often in this column, gonorrhea most of the time is promptly obvious in males, but may go undetected in females.

This form of arthritis sometimes is hard to diagnose, Schmid said, and he added that it often is preceded by an odd type of rash. Once the disease is suspected, it's short work to make a test for the gonococcus germ.

Not everyone who gets gonorrhea also gets this dangerous type of arthritis, giving rise to the suspicion that there is more than one form of germ, or ailment, involved. Be that as it may, your part of the story right and it needs to be publicized.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Recently I was told I needed an operation to remove cataracts from my eyes. I'm 53.

A health book I was reading mentioned exercises and referred to a certain school. I sent for literature and was told I could purchase the kit for $60 (or visit the school) and do eye exercises that would remove the cataracts non-surgically.

I would appreciate any information on this.—Mrs. R.C.

There are no exercises that will remove cataracts, any more than there are any exercises that will remove freckles. Or warts. Or tumors. Or scars.

Since you can see well enough to read this "health book," you can see well enough so this "school" probably can kid you along for a few months. Meantime they'll have your $60.

Better save your money for the operation when you realize that cataracts don't go away by exercises.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What makes lips peel and burn almost constantly? It seems worse in winter. I was wondering if it was a vitamin deficiency.—Mrs. R.R.R.

It could be and you might try a mixed vitamin B preparation. There are lip balms which are colorless and afford some protection from the cold. Be sure, too, that you aren't licking your lips, which can keep the trouble going instead of easing it.

Arthritis sufferers can be helped. Thosteson's booklet discusses many types of arthritis and related joint diseases as well as effective treatments and medications. For a copy of "How You Can Control Arthritis," write to him in care of The Post-Crescent, enclosing 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed (use ZIP code), stamped envelope.

Fire safety inspection scheduled

Appleton's fire department will begin a home fire safety inspection program Monday, with teams initially scheduled to inspect homes in wards 10, 12 and 18.

The program, announced by Fire Chief Roland Kuehnl, will give residents an opportunity to have their homes checked at no cost for possible fire hazards. No legal action will be taken against residents if hazards are found in the homes.

Firemen will only check homes where they specifically have been invited, and only those portions of the home indicated by the owner. Two-man inspection teams, properly identified, will be operating out of each of the city's four fire stations, and inspection hours will run daily from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Firemen also will distribute on request booklets and window stickers. The stickers are to advise firemen of the presence of small children or invalids in the house.

Kuehnl said he would announce each Friday the areas to be covered the following week. Persons requesting inspections should call the main station to set up an appointment. The program is designed so that it will not interfere with normal fire-fighting services.

Areas inspected will include the house exterior and yard, electrical and heating systems and storage facilities for flammable liquids.

Kuehnl offered these tips for residents:

—Correct house numbers are required by law on each separate dwelling and will help prevent delay in case of an emergency.

—Combustibles are not to be used to insulate a building, nor should they be accumulated next to a building, since they are a fire hazard.

—Defective chimneys should be repaired or replaced to prevent sparks and/or exhaust gases from getting into the home. Roofs in deteriorated condition should be replaced with fire resistive-type shingles.

—Litter should be kept from yards and the buildings in good repair.

—15 ampere fuses are to be used in the general wiring of a home.

—Extension cords are not to be stapled or nailed. They are not to pass from one room to another, nor are they to be hidden under rugs or furniture or any other such way. Any cord in poor condition should be discarded.

—Wall receptacles should not be overloaded.

—No flammable liquids are to be stored in the basement of the home.

—In case of a fire or other emergency, the fire department should be notified immediately. For an emergency, two exits from each room should be preplanned. A meeting place should be prearranged outside the home to determine if everyone is out, and the home should not be re-entered in an emergency.

Auto destroyed

Attempts by the Grand Chute Fire Department to quench a fire in an automobile proved too little and too late Friday afternoon. The car's driver, Kay Madson, 205 E. Third St., Neenah, was westbound on W. Wisconsin Avenue when the driveshaft started to rub. She stopped and went to call the auto's owner, Mike Gloudemans, 904 Winchester Road, Neenah. When she started back to the car, she saw smoke coming out and the fire department was called. The auto was listed as destroyed. (Post-Crescent photo by Robert Laux)

Budget cuts blamed for problems in UW system

PLATTEVILLE, Wis. (AP) — University of Wisconsin President John Weaver blamed budget cuts Friday for increasing the stresses involved in merging the former two state university systems.

"No amount of better management could make the present budget realities go away," Weaver told the UW Board of Regents in a lengthy report Friday.

Weaver complained of "external observers and officials" who he said have told campus populations "this whole mess could have been avoided by something called 'better management.'"

He said proposed cuts in the budgets for UW campuses leave the administration caught between accusations of "budget scare tactics" from state officials and angered responses from faculty and students.

Weaver told the regents that the budget cuts, shifting of funds between campuses and faculty layoffs were "already producing heaviness" on the UW as it implements merger of the former UW system and the former state university system which won legislative approval in 1971.

He outlined steps taken under merger including a review, due for completion in July, of the mission of each campus and the University Extension with the goal of eliminating duplicate services.

Weaver said the staffs of the two former systems have been consolidated, and a single budget has been developed through a computer based system.

He said a program setting equal standards for faculty workloads is still to be completed and a systemwide faculty representation committee has been developed to give faculty members a role in decision making.

In other action, the regents approved an organizational plan calling for a single statewide outreach unit, geared to involve all 27 campuses in the UW system. The regents also approved a systemwide off-campus degree granting program.

The proposal calls for the UW Extension, in coordination with the office of the vice president for academic affairs, to establish a statewide university and a faculty-administrative task force to set policy for any external degree program offered by the system or any of its units.

The regents approved increases for University Hospitals and dormitory and student fees. Hospital rates will go up $5 per day in all categories effective June 24.

Dormitory fees were increased a minimum of $25 a year for campuses other than Milwaukee and Madison, with room rates increasing by varying amounts at the campuses.

Student fees were raised $3 per semester to provide a reserve fund for maintenance of campus facilities other than dormitories.

The regents unanimously approved the appointment of Werner A. Baum as chancellor at the Milwaukee campus of the UW.

Baum, 50, is president of the University of Rhode Island, and he will take the UWM post Aug. 13, succeeding retiring Chancellor J. Martin Klotzsche who will remain on the UWM faculty.

The regents awarded Klotzsche, who has headed UWM for 27 years, the title of chancellor emeritus and a special history professorship.

UW officials said Baum will receive a salary of $40,000 in the new job. He plans to visit the Milwaukee campus Thursday and hold a news conference before returning to Rhode Island.

The regents also approved the appointment of Dr. Adolph Y. Wilburn of Washington as UW associate vice president for academic affairs, a $30,000 a year post authorized by the board in July, 1972.

Wilburn, 40, a Milwaukee native, received his doctor of education degree in educational administration from Harvard in 1968. He has worked on the staff of the National Academy of Sciences in Washington since December, 1970.

Finance unit rejects insurance pay plan

If aldermen chose to not hold a city insurance policy, that may be their own misfortune. But they will not receive the equivalent of an insurance premium as extra pay.

The City Council finance committee denied the proposal, presented by Ald. Ralph West (20th) at its Thursday meeting. It would have granted Appleton aldermen an additional $51.54 in pay each month.

West, who presented a similar resolution that was defeated by the City Council last October maintained that the $51.54 would not constitute a pay increase, but that it would assure "equalized" salaries for aldermen. Appleton aldermen presently receive $100 per month, a salary which has not been increased since 1960.

A problem with the optional free insurance coverage, said West, is that it is beneficial "to the unemployed, self-employed or retired aldermen who may have difficulty obtaining insurance. It discriminates against the working man or housewife," he said who are covered under another health insurance policy at their place of employment.

"Someone could now spend a lot in a campaign, and become alderman just to obtain this insurance," he said.

West further argued that of 10 Wisconsin cities comparable in size to Appleton, only one provides such a free health insurance policy to its aldermen. "I did not know when I ran that some people could get 50 per cent more in pay than others," he added.

West's proposal was opposed vocally by two aldermen, Mrs. Beverly Wickert (11th) and Walter Kalata (2nd). Both said an extra check for $51 each month would amount to a salary increase.

"If you want to raise it, raise the base pay," Mrs. Wickert suggested.

Kalata maintained that aldermen for the past 15 years have been "reasonably satisfied" with their compensation.

"With a lower salary, we go a little hungry, and this attracts aldermen who go to meetings because they want to and not for the pay."

An optional policy does not mean that the seven or eight aldermen taking advantage of it, are getting paid more, he told West.

Only West supported the measure when it was brought to a vote.

In other action, the finance committee referred to City Atty. David Geenen proposals from the Appleton Transit Commission regarding mass transit systems. The transit commission is asking the City Council to endorse several state measures aimed at helping transit systems operating in the red.

The committee also agreed to take definite steps in obtaining payment for outstanding bills to the city, and to call to task the purchasing policies of the city assessor's office.

The assessor's office was criticized by Finance Director Reynold Running for making an unauthorized purchase for an electric typewriter, which could result in a budget overrun.

Army home neighbors may get sewer service under state institution

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — The problems of water and sewer service for private property owners in the neighborhood of the state-owned Grand Army Home for Veterans in Waupaca County would be resolved under a measure offered by Waupaca county representatives in the legislature.

Sen. Gerald Lorge and Rep. Francis Byers have proposed that such properties be served by the state institution, with a provision that any services from the state would be on a cost recovery basis.

St. John High to be closed

LITTLE CHUTE—St. John Catholic High School, which has gone through a year of uncertainties as far as the future is concerned, will be closed at the end of this school year.

The decision to terminate operations came Thursday at a parish board meeting but the official statement will first be made to the congregation in a bulletin and announced to the press early next week.

No information as to the reasons for the decision, which reverses an earlier decision to continue for at least another year, was available this morning.

The school has been in financial straits for several years. It is the only Catholic high school in the Green Bay Diocese which was financed by a single parish.

All the others are regional schools, financed and operated by a number of area churches.

An attempt to turn St. John into such a regional school failed last year when the neighboring parishes voted by a wide margin against the concept.

In January of this year the parish council decided to remain open this coming school year despite the decision and agreed to an annual budget subsidy of about $110,000.

The subsidy implied three conditions: parish support based on the number of students from St. John.

Enrolled in the high school, formation of a separate high school board or corporation and assumption of the high school debt by the parish itself.

During 1972, special fund-raising projects, donations and increased tuition reduced the debt from $70,000 to $13,000. This debt was shifted to the parish so that the parish would have final fiscal responsibility for the school.

The new corporation was to be responsible for the operation of the school under the limits of the parish subsidy.

At that time, too, the faculty made personal commitments, with most stating they would be willing to give 10 per cent of their salaries back to the school.

St. John, once considered a relatively large Catholic high school for the size of the community, has been losing students steadily since about 1966, when the entire parochial education system began to weaken.

In 1965, there were 438 students attending St. John. A year later the number decreased by 52. In 1967 it went down to 356. The rate of decrease seemed to slow down after that but there still was a decrease and the enrollment this year stands at 301.

It was expected that there would be about the same number, or a little fewer, enrolled for the fall term, but the tuition alone could not cover the expenses and a considerable enrollment in tuition would simply decrease the enrollment.

Two truck drivers die in crash

The deaths early today of two truck drivers near Greenleaf and another Friday of a Kiel man at a Milwaukee hospital raised the state's 1973 traffic fatality toll to 327, compared with 329 on this date in record 1972.

Raymond Moritz, 61, Kiel, died Friday of head injuries he received in a May 2 two-car accident at the intersection of state highways 32, 67, 57 and 149 just east of Kiel in Manitowoc County.

The truck drivers, one a 34-year-old Hilbert man, were killed instantly when their vehicles collided head-on about three miles south of Greenleaf on State 57 at 3:45 a.m. today.

Dead are Eugene J. Sweere, 1027 W. Main St., Hilbert, and Eugene Sloan Jr., 32, Milwaukee.

Brown County police said Sweere was driving a pickup truck owned by the Lunda Construction Co. of Black River Falls and was headed south on 57.

His vehicle apparently crossed the center line and entered the path of the northbound semi-trailer-truck driven by Sloan and owned by the Clairmont Transportation Co. of Escanaba, Mich.

Sweere died from a fractured skull and broken neck, while Sloan suffered a crushed hip and severe chest injuries.

World of work

The wide world of work was investigated first hand by pupils from Woodlawn School when they toured the Fox Valley Technical Institute recently as part of their social studies program. A group, above, looks over a diamond slab saw, used for cutting minerals, something they had read about in their study of minerals. The nursing profession, always a favorite, is made more real to Ken Ebben and Sue Hurley, who listen to their own heartbeats on a stethoscope. (Post-Crescent photo)

Nelson calls land use plan crucial, but late

EAU CLAIRE, Wis. (AP) — Land use planning is a crucially important idea whose time should have come 10 years ago, Sen. Gaylord Nelson told a conference Friday.

Nelson spoke to 250 persons at the conference, and he said legislation to provide adequate planning of land uses should have been in force for at least the past decade.

The Wisconsin Democrat added, however, that the practical politics of economic and land use planning are much more difficult to master than the technicalities of space exploration.

He said economic and land use planning require the government to say "we will help this area to grow and not that area," and hard political decisions are thus involved.

Nelson predicted land use plans will be implemented when it becomes known that such plans are in the "best, selfish interest of the people of this country."

Nelson also spoke of legislation pending in Congress which would provide states with federal funds to aid in planning the development in environmentally-critical areas.

His amendment to the proposal would require states and localities to develop permit systems for all developments larger than 25 acres or involving more than 50 units.

He said the legislation is "crucially important," adding "it is not enough."

"It would seem clear that our hope for a livable future lies in a balanced growth policy, with the enlarging population deflected from the largest, most expensive, hardest to govern metropolitan areas and centers," Nelson said.

The joint conference was sponsored by the Association of Wisconsin Planners, the Wisconsin Chapter of the American Institute of Planners and the Title I Interagency Consortium for Northwest Wisconsin.

The Wisconsin Planners Association elected Harlan Clinkenbeard, 39, of Waukesha as president. Clinkenbeard is assistant director of the Southeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission.

UW board passes plan for statewide outreach unit

PLATTEVILLE, Wis. (AP) — An organizational plan calling for a single statewide outreach unit, geared to involve all 27 campuses in the University of Wisconsin system, was approved today by the UW Board of Regents.

Regents also approved a system-wide, off-campus degree granting program.

The proposal calls for the UW Extension, in coordination with the office of the vice president for academic affairs, to establish a statewide university and a faculty-administrative task force to set policy for any external degree program offered by the system or any of its units.

Transit Commission delayed in obtaining support for bills

The City Council finance committee declined to act on a request by the Appleton Transit Commission Thursday night to endorse proposed state legislation that, among other things, would provide emergency funds for bus lines that show deficits.

The committee members said they believed they had too little information to act on and referred the request to the city attorney for clarification.

The commission had voted to endorse the legislation Tuesday night and had sent it to the finance committee, in hopes it would eventually be brought to the City Council for similar support.

The legislation in question involves a package of three bills that was developed by Gov. Patrick Lucey's Committee on Mass Transit. The first of the bills, introduced recently in the Assembly, would provide that up to two-thirds of the operating deficit of a bus company, not including return on investment, for up to one year be provided by a state emergency transit fund.

The other two bills, which were introduced, would allow the highway fund to be converted to a transportation fund so urban areas could use their

Break-in reported at Neenah school

NEENAH — A break-in at Taft Elementary School was reported to Neenah police at about 7:15 a.m. Friday by the school's principal, John Hovie.

A seven-inch hole was found in the window glass of the north office door through which vandals apparently reached to open the door. There was no apparent forced entry to the school itself, according to police reports.

About $5 was reported stolen from an office counter drawer which had been pried open. Entrance to the principal's office was attempted, but the efforts failed. No other items were reported stolen.

Greenville Civic Club makes June 24 plans for annual homecoming

GREENVILLE — The Greenville Civic Club Inc. will have a garden tractor pulling contest for the Greenville annual homecoming again this year which will be Sunday, June 24 at the Greenville Community park. A ham dinner will be served at the same price as in past years.

The annual donkey baseball game will be Thursday, August 9 at the Greenville community park.

Overhead doors will be installed on the club shelter house. A Ziegler and Timm bid for installation was approved.

A $100 scholarship will be awarded to a student from the Hortonville High School and some financial support will be given to the Greenville baseball program and to the girls softball league in Greenville. The Greenville welcome sign also will be repainted by the Greenville Civic Club.

Greenville Grange resumes card parties

GREENVILLE — The South Greenville Grange will resume their summer series of card parties at 8:30 p.m. Monday, May 14 at the hall.

The women's activities committee of the Grange will be in charge of the first party including Mrs. Herbert Mossholder, Mrs. Joe Simon and Mrs. Henry Schaefer.

The parties will be continued every second Monday of the month.

The proposed external degree programs would be channeled to the vice president's office for review and recommendation to the full board of regents.

Other provisions would be that non-credit offerings by UW units would be on the basis of 100 per cent cost recovery. Campuses would utilize UW Extension for both credit and noncredit offerings outside of their immediate service areas.

The Extension would create a task force to respond to emergencies and short term needs.

A report on implementation of the Outreach program is to be provided to the regents by December.

The campus-based Outreach personnel would become joint appointees of the campus and the Extension, wherever feasible.

The parties will be continued every second Monday of the month.

Today in history

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Saturday, May 12, the 132nd day of 1973. There are 233 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1943, the World War II battle of North Africa ended with the German surrender of Cape Bon in Tunisia.

On this date— In 1775, American troops captured Crown Point on Lake Champlain from the British.

In 1820, the English woman who founded modern nursing, Florence Nightingale, was born in Florence, Italy.

In 1932, the body of the kidnapped baby son of the Charles A. Lindberghs was found in a woods in Hopewell, N.J.

In 1933, Japanese warships captured the Chinese island of Amoy.

In 1949, the Soviets announced that the 328-day blockade of land to routes to Berlin had been lifted. It was the end of the Berlin blockade.

In 1971, the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art announced it had bought a painting by the Spanish artist, Velazquez, for $5.5 million.

Ten years ago: Federal troops were sent to bases near Birmingham, Ala. after an outbreak of racial violence.

Five years ago: A poor people's march in Washington was led by Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr.

One year ago: The United States announced that U.S. bombers had cut North Vietnam's rail link with China.

Today's birthdays: Composer Burt Bacharach is 44. Baseball manager Yogi Berra is 48.

Thought for today: He that is not with me is against me — the Bible.

Hints from Heloise

Pets, not pests

Dear Heloise:

I am a dog lover. I believe it would be a service to guests, dogs, and their owners to offer this suggestion.

Many people who do not own dogs, do not understand them. I do not own a dog — two dogs own me and I love them very much.

My little yellow dog likes to take a nap on the couch, which because of our style of living, is plastic-covered. If a guest is about to sit on the couch, I quickly say, "Wait a second." I grab a rag I keep under the cushion, wipe off the hair and say "Please have a seat. I did not feel you would appreciate dog hair on your trousers (or skirt)."

My dogs love people and always approach guests to be petted, but I try to avoid any lap business or too close rubbing. If a guest pets the dog and gets hair on him, when he is about to depart, I quickly bring forth a handily kept clothes brush and brush him off, whether it is a neighbor, the minister or traveling salesman.

Their look of gratitude is obvious sometimes and I know, without them thanking me, that they really appreciate it.

Frances Johnsrud

I have two Chihuahuas, so you can see that I too am owned by my dogs! It's really terrific — but they just become like part of the family!

The way you handle the situation, it shouldn't cause any embarrassment or hard feeling. Most people, myself included — as much as I love my dogs — do not appreciate having dog hairs on clothes.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I enjoy your column and get many money-saving ideas from the letters. Perhaps you might benefit from this penny pincher at the grocery store.

My children like the chocolate-flavored oatmeal in the instant packets, which are quite expensive.

Mrs. Hanstad

This column is written for you...the housewife and homemaker. If you have a hint or a problem write to Heloise in care of this newspaper. Because of the tremendous volume of mail, Heloise is unable to answer all individual letters. She will, however, answer your questions in her column whenever possible.

Nixon urged to quit Ellsberg, free of charges, will sue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The resignation of President Nixon and Vice President Agnew so House Speaker Carl Albert can form a coalition government was urged Friday by Rep. Henry Reuss.

"The plain fact is that Mr. Nixon, whatever his involvement in Watergate, has presided over a corrupt government," the Wisconsin Democrat said.

"The plain fact is that he has waited an unconscionably long time to do anything about it. A third plain fact is that he has forfeited public confidence."

Reuss said that, even though there he saw no suggestion that Agnew was implicated in the Watergate affair, the vice president should resign because he is a member of the Nixon administration.

Albert, an Oklahoma Democrat, would automatically assume the presidency if Nixon and Agnew resigned. Reuss suggested a bipartisan government be established by him in which Republicans would be appointed to half the cabinet positions.

Reuss said the resignation of the president and vice president was preferable to their impeachment because impeachment would be a lengthy process and would leave the country weakened.

Nixon and Agnew "would improve their position in history a good deal" if they resigned now, he said.

Another Wisconsin Democrat, Rep. David Obey, said, meanwhile, he had found the European legislative and political leaders who attended the recent European Parliament to be "absolutely stunned" by Watergate.

"All they wanted to talk about was Watergate," he said. "And at a joint press conference at the end of the parliamentary session, when U.S. congressmen tried to emphasize that the Watergate affair would not affect the president's ability to get a strong trade bill through Congress, members of the press just chuckled."

Obey said that, before leaving for Europe, he did not think Watergate would affect the president's ability to deal with foreign affairs.

"I know now that I was dead wrong," he said.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo, freed of charges in the Pentagon papers case because of government misconduct, say they will sue President Nixon for "conspiracy to deprive us of our civil liberties."

"We will bring suit against all the conspirators, of which President Nixon appears to be the ringleader," Ellsberg said Friday after espionage, conspiracy and theft charges against Ellsberg and Russo were lifted by U.S. District Judge Matt Byrne Jr.

Ellsberg, calm and smiling, told newsmen the Watergate and White House involvement in his case reminded him of Mafia tactics.

"I think of the code of the Mafia," he said. "Silence. That has been the code of the White House."

Russo said he believed the sudden disclosures of wiretaps, a break-in at the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist and an undercover White House investigation of Ellsberg had shown that "our country has been run by criminals."

Ellsberg said lawsuits will be filed against officials other than Nixon—all those whose names have been implicated in the prosecution in the past two weeks.

He said he doesn't believe there is enough evidence yet to show that Nixon is guilty of a crime, but Ellsberg said he feels there is sufficient evidence to indict the President.

"I believe that President Nixon is innocent until proven guilty, and he deserves his day in court just as we did," Ellsberg said.

Ellsberg and Russo, both former researchers on government projects for the Rand Corp., were charged because they admittedly copied the Pentagon papers, a top secret study of U.S. involvement in Vietnam. Ellsberg later leaked them to news media.

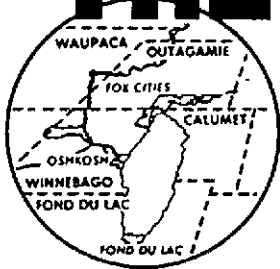

Though the trial itself drowned in a flood of Watergate and White House misconduct, the issues that precipitated the case were never resolved.

"The charges against these defendants raise serious factual and legal issues that I would certainly prefer to have litigated to completion," Byrne commented in dismissing the charges.

The revelations that Watergate conspirators had broken into the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist, that the White House had launched an undercover probe of Ellsberg's leak of the papers and that Ellsberg had been overheard on secret wiretaps showed "that govern-

Gray told Nixon of role of aides in Watergate

WASHINGTON (AP) — L. Patrick Gray III told President Nixon 19 days after the Watergate arrests he was disturbed at the role White House aides appeared to be playing in the FBI investigation, according to varying news accounts.

Some accounts quote Gray as telling Senate investigators former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman intervened without explanation to cancel a meeting set up by Gray to explore the possibility the Central Intelligence Agency played a role in the Watergate bugging.

In his speech to the nation April 30 Nixon said that after beginning the investigation immediately after the break-in at Democratic headquarters, he repeatedly asked and was repeatedly assured there was no reason to believe any member of the administration was in any way involved.

From Camp David, Md., where President Nixon was spending Mother's Day weekend a White House spokesman would not comment on the new reports. Gray could not be reached immediately for comment.

In an interview Thursday night with the Senate investigators, Gray, according to some newspaper accounts, told Nixon in a telephone conversation July 6, 1972, there was "confusion" and apparent White House obstacles in the path of the investigation.

These accounts, however, said Gray mentioned no specifics to the President and gave investigators no evidence either he or Nixon knew of a White House coverup.

But other accounts, including that of the New York Daily News, said Gray told investigators Ehrlichman "inhibited" the investigation from the start and that Gray followed Ehrlichman's instructions only after he was "satisfied" Nixon was aware of Ehrlichman's actions.

The News said Ehrlichman insisted on the morning of June 28 on canceling the meeting planned for that afternoon between FBI and CIA executives, even when Gray told him he suspected the CIA of involvement in Watergate.

The News cited no sources for its story.

Most accounts agreed that Gray told investigators he voiced his concerns on July 5, 1972 to Clark MacGregor, then director of the Committee for the Re-election of the President, and asked him to tell Nixon.

The next day, the accounts said, Nixon called Gray on another matter and Gray voiced concerns directly to Nixon.

Gray's message to the President and Nixon's response were left unclear in the widely varying reports.

Sources used by The Chicago Tribune quoted Gray as saying he was called on June 21, four days after the June 17 break-in, by fired White House Counsel John Dean III. The Tribune said Gray told investigators that Dean asked him not to question certain persons the FBI wanted to interview about possible CIA links to Watergate.

The Tribune said Gray complained the aides were hindering his efforts and quoted Nixon as replying, "Pat, you just continue your investigation in the same thorough and aggressive manner you've been doing."

The New York Times quoted sources connected with the Senate Watergate investigating committee as saying reports that Gray had told Nixon of attempts to impede the investigation were "out of focus" and did not fully reflect Gray's position.

It cited one source as saying, "There was confusion. Gray felt things should be straightened out so that he could carry on this investigation."

Skylab crew ready

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The medically fit Skylab 1 astronauts relaxed in their quarantine quarters today as preparations proceeded on schedule for the launch next week of America's first space station.

Astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Paul J. Weitz and Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin were declared "ready to fly" after daylong physical examinations at the Johnson Space Center near Houston on Friday.

Dr. Royce Hawkins, deputy director for medical operations at the center, said the medical tests "went extremely well and we feel confident the crew is ready to fly. We saw no medical problems."

The medical information also will be used for in-flight and post-flight comparison of the astronauts' physical condition. A major goal of the Skylab program is to determine how well man can function physically in space for long periods.

Conrad, Weitz and Kerwin, a physician, are to inhabit the lab, as large as a three-bedroom house, for 28 days. The Skylab 2 and 3 crews will rocket to the same station in August and November for 56-day stays.

Following their physicals Friday, the Skylab 1 crew concluded its formal training with a session in the Skylab simulator. It ended a tough training regime that began when the crew was named to fly the mission 16 months ago.

Since April 24, the men have been in medical quarantine, their contacts limited to reduce the possibility of catching a disease that might delay the mission.

On Sunday, the three astronauts will board separate T38 jets to fly to Cape Kennedy. They'll settle into crew quarters five miles from the launch pads.

They'll be at a viewing site three miles away at 1:30 p.m. EDT Monday when a Saturn 5 rocket is to loft their space home toward an orbit 270 miles above the earth. Then they'll await the signal to blast off at 1 p.m. Tuesday to fly to a linkup with the 100-ton station.

Budget cuts blamed for problems in UW system

PLATTEVILLE, Wis. (AP) — University of Wisconsin President John Weaver blamed budget cuts Friday for increasing the stresses involved in merging the former two state university systems.

"No amount of better management could make the present budget realities go away," Weaver told the UW Board of Regents in a lengthy report Friday.

Weaver complained of "external observers and officials" who he said have told campus populations "this whole mess could have been avoided by something called 'better management.'"

He said proposed cuts in the budgets for UW campuses leave the administration caught between accusations of "budget scare tactics" from state officials and angered responses from faculty and students.

Weaver told the regents that the budget cuts, shifting of funds between campuses and faculty layoffs were "already producing heavy stress" on the UW as it implements merger of the former UW system and the former state university system which won legislative approval in 1971.

He outlined steps taken under merger including a review, due for completion in July, of the mission of each campus and the University Extension with the goal of eliminating duplicate services.

Weaver said the staffs of the two former systems have been consolidated, and a single budget has been developed through a computer based system.

He said a program setting equal standards for faculty workloads is still to be completed and a systemwide faculty representation committee has been developed to give faculty members a role in decision making.

In other action, the regents approved an organizational plan calling for a single statewide outreach unit, geared to involve all 27 campuses in the UW system. The regents also approved a systemwide off-campus degree granting program.

The proposal calls for the UW Extension, in coordination with the office of the vice president for academic affairs, to establish a statewide university and a faculty-administrative task force to set policy for any external degree program offered by the system or any of its units.

The regents approved increases for University Hospitals and dormitory and student fees. Hospital rates will go up $5 per day in all categories effective June 24.

Dormitory fees were increased a minimum of $25 a year for campuses other than Milwaukee and Madison, with room rates increasing by varying amounts at the campuses.

Student fees were raised $3 per semester to provide a reserve fund for maintenance of campus facilities other than dormitories.

The regents unanimously approved the appointment of Werner A. Baum as chancellor at the Milwaukee campus of the UW.

Baum, 50, is president of the University of Rhode Island, and he will take the UWM post Aug. 13, succeeding retiring Chancellor J. Martin Klotz who will remain on the UWM faculty.

The regents awarded Klotz, who has headed UWM for 27 years, the title of chancellor emeritus and a special history professorship.

UW officials said Baum will receive a salary of $40,000 in the new job. He plans to visit the Milwaukee campus Thursday and hold a news conference before returning to Rhode Island.

The regents also approved the appointment of Dr. Adolph Y. Wilburn of Washington as UW associate vice president for academic affairs, a $30,000 a year post authorized by the board in July, 1972.

Wilburn, 40, a Milwaukee native, received his doctor of education degree in educational administration from Harvard in 1968. He has worked on the staff of the National Academy of Sciences in Washington since December, 1970.

Board to discuss school addition

NEW LONDON — Stubenrauch and Associates, the school's architects, will discuss the proposed addition and remodeling program at Washington Junior High School when the board of education meets at 8 p.m. Monday.

A plan for a $600,000 addition at the school has been discussed to help ease overcrowding and to provide space for projected enrollment increases.

In other business, the board will discuss a recommendation from Supt. H. J. Ramsdell that the school district's insurance policies for buildings and contents be increased 30 per cent. He cited increased construction costs, and said the insurance levels for the district haven't been increased within the last three years.

The board also will discuss action taken by the city council, which raised rental fees for Hatten Stadium from $100 plus maintenance and lighting costs to $500, with other costs included, for the school's four annual football games at the stadium.

City officials claimed they have been losing money on the park rental.

The state Supreme Court ruling that students who are 5-years-old by Dec. 1 of any year be admitted to kindergarten that year also will be discussed again. Formerly board policy carried an Oct. 1 date.

Athletic director Larry Graves will seek board approval for interscholastic athletic competition for girls in grades 9-12 through the Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic Association.

The board also will discuss and possibly act on some proposed options toward purchasing a carry-all van truck for the school lunch program.

The board had approved a bid to Volz Chevrolet at its last meeting, but V. A. Volz, president of the firm, has informed the board he cannot deliver the truck according to specifications.

He said the 350-inch cubic inch engine the board requested is not available in that unit. Volz said the board could order a 454-cubic inch engine for $178 more, or could purchase a half-ton instead of a three-quarter-ton truck.

Increase sought in blood drive

WAUPACA — An appeal for 28 pints of replacement blood has been added to the 137-pint quota set for the Red Cross Bloodmobile Monday at the Waupaca Armory.

"This 28 pints will replace blood used when Mrs. Ruth Brockman recently had open heart surgery at Appleton Memorial Hospital," Miss Carmen Barnes, chairman, explained.

"The volunteers for the visit, manning the center from noon to 5:30 p.m., have been assigned, including nine high school volunteers. 'I want to encourage 18-year-olds, who can donate blood for the first time, to join the walk-in donors during this visit.'"

First-time donors receive a plastic blood donor card, listing blood type and other data which could be vital in an emergency.

A special appeal has been made to the city's leading industries and businesses to permit their employees who wish to donate blood to visit the bloodmobile between 1 and 5 p.m. The busiest hours are from 12 to 1 p.m. and after 5 p.m., according to the chairman. The visit takes a little less than an hour.

Reports set for Waupaca supervisors

WAUPACA — The Waupaca County Board will meet at 10 a.m., Tuesday, and is scheduled to hear reports by Robert Payette, director of the department of social services; Roy Wiley, executive director of the East-Central Planning Commission; Melvin Pethke, chairman of the county housing authority; John DeVaud, county treasurer and Gordon Bratz, secretary of the county fair association.

Supervisors also will be asked to consider a resolution which would authorize Vernon Johnson, director of emergency government, to act for the county in obtaining federal financial assistance under the Disaster Relief Act.

This is the method prescribed to obtain help for county residents who suffer losses in flooding of the Wolf River and its tributaries.

A petition, signed by 22 property owners who reside on or adjacent to County Trunk JJ, Town of Royalton, requesting that this highway be changed from a county highway to a town road will be considered.

This request was made initially to the county highway committee, stating that highway safety on JJ (adjacent to Bear Lake) has become a problem and that the Town of Royalton board could take certain measures to improve safety.

The highway committee inspected the short trunk and is recommending that the county board act favorably on the petition to change it to a town road.

Absentee voter target of new election bill

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent staff writer

MADISON — Like most politicians, Gov. Patrick Lucey believes that the absentee voter represents an implied rebuke to his profession. Like most Democrats, the governor is also firmly convinced that he and his party can prosper more surely if ways and means can be devised to persuade all eligible persons to enter their names on the registration rolls.

More than a year ago he chose an advisory commission to study the mechanics of election administration in Wisconsin, to identify its faults, and to recommend remedial legislation.

That report has now reached the legislature in bill form, and it proposes what is probably the most extensive changes in the machinery of elections ever offered to the legislature in a single package.

It would also set up machinery to make the election process so easy for prospectively eligible voters that only the utterly indifferent would be absent on election days in the future if it is enacted.

For the first time, if the legislature agrees there would be a uniform requirement for registration throughout the state with a master registry list compiled and maintained by the secretary of state who is now the constitutional state elections officer.

Present law requires registration in only the more populous places, on the presumption that election boards in more sparsely settled localities are familiar enough with their neighbors to be able to identify illegal voters without the registration requirement.

But the basic change would be to put upon local governments the responsibility for recruiting registrants, in effect, through door to door and post card canvasses at their discretion, and not less frequently than once in four years.

Thus is reflected the belief that requiring the prospective voter to call at the registration office, tends to be a deterrent to participation in elections.

Among the other principal requirements that would apply statewide: Elimination of the use of police to verify voter registration.

Designation of all high schools and fire stations as registration stations, and authorizing the use of supermarkets, community centers and others for such purposes.

A requirement that the challenger, rather than the challenged voter, appear before clerks and election boards in registration disputes.

A provision that only election inspectors will be chosen from party lists, and requiring ballot and election clerks to be taken from non-partisan rosters.

Elimination of the challenge to electors on the basis that residence for education is for a "temporary purpose."

A requirement for aid to electors at the polls who have English-reading difficulties.

The designation of county clerks as supervisors in all elections.

The governor has sought on most of his major program proposals to get bi-partisan authorship. Only Democratic legislators signed his election revision bill as authors, suggesting that some of the changes may not be easily accepted in the legislature where the opposing Republican party controls one house.

Panel plans survey on Brillion recreation director board eyes roadwork

NEW LONDON — An ad hoc committee pushing to hire a full-time recreation director to provide leisure activities for area residents has announced that it will conduct a survey of all school children and many adults in the community.

About 2,500 students in grades 3-12 will be asked to fill out a survey next week, regarding their favorite activities. A spokesman from the committee, which is composed of representatives from nine local civic organizations, said the questionnaire also will try to determine the amount of interest in the proposal.

Among the 75 interest areas listed in the survey are arts and crafts, basketball, tennis, biking, theater, baton twirling, and various dances.

The local weekly newspaper and the local shopper also have volunteered to donate space for a survey regarding adult views on the proposals and try to determine their interest areas.

The spokesman said the questionnaires, when completed, will be presented to the board of education, the City Council, and the park, recreation and beautification committee.

The City Council and school board have discussed the possibility of hiring a joint recreation director for years, and negotiations have again stopped. The civic organizations have been working the past months in an attempt to rekindle interest in the proposal.

The board announced plans to attend the town's association meeting May 18 in St. John.

The Town Board also head Milton Rudolph, a representative of Brebner machinery in Green Bay describe his firm's proposals for different sizes of graders with a plow blade and wing. He said the company spends $80 million each year on research and development, and could work out rental or rental purchase plans if the town desired. ## Courts

WAUPACA — Lowell E. Kendley, 48, King, pleaded no-contest to driving while under the influence of an intoxicant and fined $152, plus costs, and ordered to attend the Group Dynamics Traffic Safety School at Fox Valley Technical Institute, Appleton.

He was arrested by state police on Jan. 13, and at his initial court appearance Feb. 1, he pleaded innocent and trial was set for March 26. At that time, his attorney entered a motion to suppress and it was denied by the court.

Kindley has until July 10 to pay the fine, or spend 20 days in the county jail.

NEW LONDON — A Weyauwega man, Jeffrey A. Thiel, 21, route 1, pleaded guilty to operating a motor vehicle after revocation and to operating while under the influence of an intoxicant.

He was arrested May 1, following an accident on State 22-54 at the high bridge, east of Waupaca, in which his truck sideswiped the concrete railroad overpass bridge and took out a number of guard rails.

Judge Nathan Wiese, holding court here Wednesday, fined Thiel $102, plus costs on the charge and $177 plus costs on the driving while intoxicated charge.

NEW LONDON — Robert Tate, 24, of route 1, Manawa, forfeited $59 bond in Waupaca County Court Branch 2 this week on a charge of disorderly conduct. Police said the man harassed a New London police officer and used abusive language during an April 29 encounter on N. Water St.

WAUPACA — LaVerne Boelter, 18, 513 S. Division St., first pleaded innocent Thursday, to contributing to the delinquency of a 15-year old girl, but later in the day returned to court with his counsel to enter a plea of no contest.

According to the complaint signed by the girl's father, Boelter had taken the 15-year-old to his home under conditions regarded as improper.

Judge Nathan Wiese, County Court Branch 2, found the defendant guilty and sentenced him to six months in the county jail with working privileges.

Boelter is to pay court costs.

CLINTONVILLE — City court cases Wednesday before Judge Nathan Wiese in County Court Branch 2 included Harold Steenbock Jr., 17, route 3, who pleaded no contest to a charge of transporting intoxicants as a minor following his arrest April 26. He was fined $50 plus costs and his driver's license was suspended for 60 days.

Two passengers in the Steenbock car, Roger Weatherwax, 17, Embarrass, and Gregory Kuss, 16, route 3, Clintonville, were charged with drinking intoxicants in a moving vehicle. Each pleaded no contest and each was fined $50 plus costs.

Jeffery Mitchell, 22, route 3, was charged April 8 with making a backing Y turn at a controlled intersection, hit and run of an attended vehicle, and knowingly fleeing an officer. When he appeared for trial before Wiese Wednesday, a plea of no contest was entered on the first and second charges. He was fined $30 plus costs and witness fees on the first charge; and, $200 plus costs on the second charge. The third charge was dismissed on a motion of Asst. D.A. Terry Rehholz.

Mark Holm, 21, Clintonville, was charged on April 14 with operating after revocation (second offense), knowingly fleeing an officer, speeding, and having illegal mufflers. He appeared Wednesday for trial and was found guilty on the first charge and fined $175 plus costs and will serve 90 days mandatory sentence in the Waupaca County jail. He may serve it under the Huber law. The other charges were dismissed by a motion of City Atty. Ralph Lauer.

Upper house hopes to delete reformatory issue

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Raymond Johnson says the GOP-controlled upper house hopes to delete some policy issues from the 1973-75 budget proposal passed by the Democratic-controlled Assembly.

The Eau Claire lawmaker said Friday the Senate Republicans want to get fiscal issues to a legislative conference committee as soon as possible, and he expected "some definite action" next week. He said caucus meetings would be held to decide whether to push for nonconcurrent, a substitute amendment or a series of simple amendments.

Johnson said the GOP agrees with representatives of the Wisconsin AFL-CIO that no state institutions should be closed. But the version of Democratic Gov. Patrick Lucey's budget passed by the lower house calls for the closing of the Central State Hospital at Waupun and the Wisconsin Child Center at Sparta and the operation of the Green Bay State Reformatory at a reduced level.

Republicans feel Lucey's proposal for a state takeover of social services needs a full public debate, Johnson said, and should be put aside until next fall to provide time for this to be accomplished.

Johnson also said the GOP might try to delete from the budget creation of 15 new government positions and 71 board and commission posts which are not subject to Senate confirmation. He said the new positions and new bodies such as the proposed Health Policy Council, Arts and Humanities Board and Council on Municipal Accounting would comprise a "new patronage employee system."

Efforts to delete the code of ethics which was attached to Lucey's budget proposal by the Assembly might also be made, Johnson indicated, to clear the way for two Republican measures on the same question. He said the issue should not be whether an ethics code is attached to a legislative pay raise, but whether the legislature will become a full time body.

Assembly Majority Leader John Shabaz, R-New Berlin, said meanwhile that Lucey had offered legislators a "carrot" in the form of increased salaries, in exchange for their support of what he called a mislabeled ethics code.

"If that isn't 'buy the people government,' I don't know what is," Shabaz said. "We've got an ethics code that isn't worth the paper it's printed on."

Lucey had expressed a wish before the Assembly action Thursday that any increase in legislative salaries be accompanied by a code of ethics. The lower house called for a boost from $9,900 to $14,223 in legislator's pay.

Large ponders move to bigger, better things

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent staff writer

MADISON — Gerald D. Lorge of Bear Creek, for 23 years a Republican member of the state senate, is telling associates and friends that he wants to run for United States senator or governor in 1974.

The ranking member of the legislature's upper house in seniority confirmed to a reporter that he wants to move to a higher place and that he believes he could probably campaign most effectively for governor because of his understanding of state government issues through his long association with them in the legislature.

Lorge was re-elected to a four year term last fall and explained that if he does not reach out for higher place next fall, he will probably not do so in a future year. The longtime representative of Outagamie and Waupaca counties is a lawyer and is 51 years of age.

He recalled that he had considered a candidacy for Eighth district U.S. representative last fall, but concluded that the competitive lineup for the Republican nomination then was not favorable because of the geographical distribution of the candidates.

If Lorge decides to make the most important race of his life, his target would be Sen. Gaylord Nelson or Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, both of whom are regarded as virtually certain candidates for reelection and are among the most effective of the vote-getters the Democratic party has produced in recent times.

Lorge said he would not be concerned about the endorsement of the Republican state organization for a party nomination, and said that he would campaign as an opponent of the endorsement process. He maintains that the pre-primary delegate convention endorsement practices by the Republican organization for many years have been hurtful because they offend persons who believe in an unqualified primary election.

The veteran Outagamie County politician has harbored a desire for a U.S. senate seat for many years. He was one of numerous candidates for the Republican nomination to the place after the death of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy in 1957, a contest that resulted in serious ruptures in the Republican organization and was thought by many politicians to help in the election of Sen. William Proxmire, Democrat.

Lorge now discounts that experience, saying that he was then an untied youth and had been unable to mount an effective campaign in a crowded primary field.

The Outagamie legislator is the first politician to talk seriously about seeking the Republican senatorial nomination.

Others are thought to be interested in the party's designation as gubernatorial nominee, the most generally accepted among them being Attorney General Robert Warren. Former U.S. defense secretary, Melvin Laird is also favored by some admirers, and although he has said he has no such plan, he has not completely closed the door.

Oneida man is sentenced in knifing incident

A 20-year-old route 1, Oneida man was sentenced Friday to 120 days in the county jail with Huber Law privileges after he was found guilty of reckless use of a weapon, relating to an April 27 knifing incident outside an Oneida tavern.

George L. Cooper pleaded guilty when he appeared before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Police charged that Cooper was one of four persons involved in a fight outside Clem & Edna's Bar, in which he received neck injuries and Cyril Christjohn, 23, Oneida, sustained a punctured lung and chest cuts. Investigators later recovered a 4 1/2 inch hunting knife, which they believed was used in the stabbing.

Two other men were charged with disorderly conduct after the fight. They are Matthew Antone, 21, route 3, Seymour, and Christjohn's brother Theodore, 25, also of Oneida.

State man indicted on bribery charges while serving as vice consul

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A Wisconsin man was indicted Wednesday by a U.S. District Court grand jury in a case stemming from his role as U.S. vice consul in Oporto, Portugal.

A 12-count indictment also cited Arnaldo Pinto de Oporto, operator of a travel agency, and two other Portuguese.

The State Department had announced in April, 1970, its dismissal of Lawhorn, accusing him of improperly issuing visas under a $110,000 arrangement with Portuguese travel agents.

Lawhorn, who attended high school in Wisconsin Dells, is a 1966 graduate of the University of Wisconsin.

He was assigned to the Oporto post in 1968.

Warren warns high schools of job offer fraud

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert Warren asked Wisconsin high school principals Friday to have their students report all instances in which they are offered high paying jobs as truck drivers or heavy equipment operators.

A joint investigation by the attorney general's office and the Department of Agriculture found that a newspaper advertising campaign offered the high paying jobs, but that only an instruction manual would be furnished in return for a $200 to $800 investment, Warren said.

State law prohibits employment advertisements which fail to disclose that an investment must be made before the applicant is hired.

Warren said in an enforcement bulletin mailed to the state's secondary school principals that he thinks high school students are answering the advertisement and that they might lose substantial investments.

Beaver Dam official fined on bribery charge

JUNEAU, Wis. (AP) — The head of the Beaver Dam Street Department was fined $1,500 and placed on two years probation in Dodge County Court Friday on two counts of accepting a bribe.

Judge Joseph E. Schultz sentenced Lyman Linde after Linde pleaded no contest to the charges.

Donald Schmidt, an agent for the organized crime section of the state Justice Department, told the court Linde accepted a barbecue grill worth $35 and a ladies' wristwatch worth $10 last year from Burt Ische, a salesman for the Del Chemical Corp.

Linde spent $7,381 on chemicals in 1972, and $5,391 of the purchases were from Del.

The charges grew out of Linde's testimony at an Oshkosh John Doe investigation into dealings between private firms and public officials.

New school, remodeling okayed at Hortonville

HORTONVILLE — The board of education has voted to recommend that the district construct a 1,100-student elementary school in the village, and begin remodeling the present complex, housing grades from kindergarten through high school, for grades 7-12.

Total cost of the project is estimated at $2.4 million.

The board's action this week came after the citizen's school planning committee could not decide between proposals to build one elementary center, or to build two schools, one in the Town of Greenville and one in Hortonville.

Board members and the school administration will explain their views to the planning committee at a meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the school cafeteria.

Supt. Marvin Obry said the new elementary school would cost about $1.78 million, according to Thern and Associates of Oshkosh, the school architects.

But he said that even though the total projects costs are estimated at $2.4 million, the board feels the bond issue could be limited to about $1.95 million. Obry said funds from the bonding could be re-invested during construction, and said anticipated increases in state school aids could be used to offset the building costs.

He said that remodeling the present complex in the village would cost about $450,000, which would include adding more space for industrial arts, and most educational areas.

The board has studied various proposals ranging from the construction of a new high school to extended day, split shift and year around school schedules, since a $2.5 referendum was defeated in November, 1971.

Officials say more room is needed at all grade levels to ease overcrowded conditions in the buildings. Four portable classrooms were bought three years ago and are used for elementary school; two kindergarten classrooms in the rural Wide Awake School are used; two kindergarten rooms are rented for St. Peter and Paul Catholic School, and two junior, high mathematics classrooms are rented from the village Community Hall.

Obry said the district probably will be forced to rent at least one more classroom next year from Ellington Insurance.

Dean of student life named at St. Norbert

DE PERE — The Rev. Eugene Gries, dean of men at St. Norbert College the past four years, has been named dean of student life.

Gries will replace the Rev. E. Thomas De Wane on July 1. De Wane's appointment as principal of Premontre High School in Green Bay was announced last month.

Gries graduated from Neenah High School in 1958 and received his B.S. in business administration from St. Norbert in 1962, when he was president of the senior class.

Racine lawyer to head state bar association

MADISON — Glenn R. Coates, Racine, has been elected chairman of the board of governors of the State Bar of Wisconsin. He will assume office on June 19.

Coates is a partner in the Racine law firm of Heft, Coates, Heft, Henzl & Bichler. He is a native of Thorp and was graduated from the University of Wisconsin Law School in 1949. He has served on the State Judicial Council since 1964 and was chairman of the council in 1969-1972.

Honor Society members

Workers strike over health, safety matters

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

Americans are being asked to boycott Shell gasoline for the sake of refinery workers' health. Shell says it's a bum rap. The environmental movement doesn't think so.

At issue is a three-month-old strike by 4,000 Shell workers in California, Texas,

Last of a series

Colorado, Louisiana and Washington. The walkout marks one of the relatively few times that workers have struck over the increasingly publicized subject of job safety.

The boycott has had almost no effect so far. Shell says fewer than 3,000 of its several million credit-card customers have returned their cards, and that sales are actually ahead of last year. The union concedes it hasn't hurt Shell's production much, and with a nationwide shortage of gasoline developing, Shell is selling all it can produce.

But the boycott organizers hope to saturate news media with their side of the story. Billboards have appeared in 25 cities. Thousands of bumper stickers and one million pieces of literature have been distributed. Pickets have appeared long enough to attract news coverage at scattered Shell stations.

The union wants pension improvements and a contract clause to find and correct health and safety hazards in the five refineries and four chemical plants affected by the strike.

Shell says the union's true demands are traditional: money and power. But the health-and-safety issue has attracted boycott endorsements from the Sierra Club, the Wilderness Society, Friends of the Earth and nine other environmental groups.

What the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union seeks are periodic inspections by outside consultants, free physical examinations for workers, a voice in correcting any hazards and access to company figures on worker sickness and health.

Almost every other major oil company already has agreed to this arrangement, without a strike. The holdouts are Chevron, which employs 500 of the union's members, and Shell.

The argument is summed up by a Shell spokesman and union official Anthony Mazzocchi. "Employee health and safety is Shell's legal responsibility. It cannot be shared," says Shell. Mazzocchi replies, "Shell just wants to keep unilateral control over the environment of the workplace."

How dangerous is that environment? The matter isn't clear. National Safety Council figures show that the chemical and petroleum industries have fewer disabling accidents than the average for all industries. Further, these accidents cause fewer lost days than average.

But the union says it's concerned less about accidents than about threats to health from heat, noise and the hundreds of poisonous chemicals its workers handle. Few official statistics are available about what harm refinery and chemical workers suffer from job-induced illnesses. However, union official Ray Davidson published a 198-page book in 1971 made up largely of case studies of union workers poisoned on the job.

Shell doesn't see much of a pinch from the strike, so the union hopes to bring added pressure through a consumer boycott. Shell is the second largest gasoline merchant, with stations in 43 states.

The strike doesn't seem likely to be settled anytime soon. Shell's struck refineries and chemical plants are being run by supervisory and technical workers. Shell says output is normal, but the union doubts that.

Lindquists often beat children, sitter says

CHICAGO—The parents of Johnny Lindquist beat their children frequently, a 13-year-old former neighbor boy and some time baby-sitter for the family testified in court Thursday.

John Self was one of several witnesses called to testify at the opening of a two-day hearing to determine whether Mrs. Irene Lindquist, 26, and her husband, William, 31, should be released on recognizance bonds.

Mrs. Lindquist has been in jail since December when she was indicted on charges of murder and conspiracy in the fatal beating of Johnny, the foster child of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Karvanek, Tigerton. A ward of the state since shortly after his birth, Johnny was returned to his natural parents in March of 1972 on the advice of a case worker who said the Lindquists would receive a larger welfare check with an extra child in their home. The Lindquists have four other children.

Johnny's father was jailed last Aug. 31, the day Johnny died. He spent nearly a month in a coma before his death.

Self said Mrs. Lindquist struck at least one of her five children every time he visited the Lindquist apartment. "And I was there almost every day," he said.

He said he saw Lindquist strike Johnny and a brother twice for wetting their beds or "jumping around," and that once he saw a bruise on the side of Johnny's head.

Pope proclaims 1975 'Holy Year'

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI today proclaimed 1975 as a "holy year" and called on all Christians and non-Christians to join the Roman Catholic Church in a worldwide effort for reconciliation among men and with God.

He invited "those who can and want" to come as pilgrims to Rome. But he played down the role of the center of Catholicism and said the spiritual privileges of the holy year could be obtained locally in the various dioceses starting June 10 this year.

A thunderous applause by a crowd of 7,000 hailed the announcement Pope Paul made during his weekly general audience. He read it in French, English, Spanish and German, and was interrupted by applause each time. The Pope restated the tradition that "special indulgences," remittance of divine punishment for sins, will be granted to Roman Catholics performing certain devotions.

A Vatican statement specified that each diocese around the world should send a group of pilgrims to Rome in 1975 as a sign of loyalty and submission to the Pope.

"Today I give you good news," Pope Paul said, "and you are the first to learn it. After having prayed and thought, we have decided to celebrate the holy year in 1975."

"The conditions requested to acquire particular spiritual fruits will this time be granted first to local churches in

Question mark hangs over once powerful religious orders

BY GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A question mark hangs today over the future of the old, once thriving and powerful religious orders of Roman Catholicism. Most are shrinking. A noted American church scholar says bluntly they're "already dead."

This is the jolting thesis of Brother Gabriel Moran, a pungently articulate intellectual and leader in one of the Church's most venerable teaching orders, the Christian Brothers. He has been pressing the point for the last three years.

"We've got to face it while we still have enough concerned people left in the movement to crystallize new, living forms of community," he says. "There is still something that could be done, but it won't be true for long."

While other Church authorities cite various ailments of the religious orders, few concur with the idea that they're totally defunct, and many dismiss Brother Moran's view as mere gadfly needling of complacency.

"He makes overemphatic, blatant assertions to wake people up and make them think," commented his superior in Rome, Brother Aloysius Carmody, secretary-general of the 300-year-old Christian Brothers.

Nevertheless, statistically, there has been a steady shrinkage in most religious orders both for men and women for the past seven years, despite numerous changes in their structures, rules and activities.

In that period in the United States, the number of priests in religious orders has fallen from 23,021 to 20,694; the number of brothers has dropped from 12,539 to 9,740 and the number of nuns from 181,421 to 146,914.

Studies have projected continued declines. A product of the late Middle Ages, the orders such as the Franciscans, Dominicans and Jesuits long have been the wellspring of the Church's academic and social creativity. But their cohesive mystique has waned in modern times.

"They're slowly disintegrating,"

Church of Christ will have rally, gospel meeting

A weeklong gospel meeting will begin Sunday at the Church of Christ, 3225 W. Spencer St. The speaker will be David Reppart, a minister from Flint, Mich.

The event will begin with a 9:30 a.m. Bible class, followed by a 10:30 a.m. worship service. Other services are set at 6 p.m. Sunday and 7:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

A youth rally with the theme, "Shock: Past, Present, Future," will be conducted May 18 and 19. On Friday Reppart will be in charge and on Saturday, James Hinkle, a minister from Janesville, and James Boor of Marshfield will be in charge.

The rally begins at 7 p.m. Friday and at 9 a.m. Saturday. There will be a noon lunch and recreation after lunch at the Thunder Bowl in Neenah.

The event is open to the public. Information is available from John A. Boor, local minister.

First UCC senior high group plans July trip to Missouri work camp

The senior high group of First Congregational United Church of Christ is planning a week long trip to a UCC community center-work camp in Shannondale, Mo., in July.

The group will participate in building low water bridges and sidewalks and help with planting. There will be time for fellowship and sightseeing. The cost is $38.

Interested persons may call the church for additional information. A station wagon, a van and a large tent are needed by the group. Persons who wish to supply any of the items also may call the church.

Brother Moran commented, in discussing the often indignant reactions to his conclusion that they have become moribund. If it wasn't valid, he added, "The screams wouldn't be so loud."

"It's apparently too threatening for the institutional Church to bear, and so the Church hangs on desperately to a system that's not working," he said. "It keeps withdrawing, fighting a kind of rear-guard action, with fewer and fewer left in the organizations to take the drastic action necessary."

Brother Moran, 37, a professor of theology and education and also the elected superior of the Long Island-New England province of the Christian Brothers, has sounded his warning since 1970 in lectures, articles and books.

He maintains the religious order has lost its effectiveness, can no longer accomplish its purposes, has ceased to be a viable form of organization and thus, in effect, is dead, although thousands of people still are members.

That they still remain adherents offers a continuing, but gradually disappearing means for developing new modes of community religious life that can survive in modern times, he says.

He says this will require a total dismantling of the old forms which segregate men and women in different organizations, and the development of new communities including men and women, young and old, married and single, doing away with "all castes" and involving all kinds of Christians.

To accomplish this, however, would require a basic realignment of Church authority, he notes, including a change in the concept of the priesthood itself and eventual replacement of the present geographically based parish system.

Some tentative moves in this direction already are apparent in the so-called "floating parishes" and in the widespread tendency of order priests and nuns to leave the large religious houses and live in small groups in homes or apartments.

Indications are that "this style of life will be normative for the future," says the Rev. Paul M. Boyle, president of the Conference of Major Superiors of men's orders. However, he discounts Brother Moran's idea as that of a "modern Don Quixote."

Brother Moran, a graduate of the University of New Hampshire in his native state and with a Ph. D. from the Catholic University of America, teaches at New York Theological Seminary and also runs a mobile school called "The Alternative."

Its 10 men and 10 women participants live in communal groupings, teaching their approach to others. He says the old organizations must be scuttled and replaced with something new, "something that's more human, that builds on qualities other than geography or sexual segregation."

He envisions a Church made up of a vast variety of cells or nuclei, each perhaps of a dozen or more people, based on mutual concerns, activities and dwelling units.

"We wish to create community forms that do not yet exist," he says.

LC-MS president reports on seminary board action

ST. LOUIS — In his April "Brother To Brother" report to the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, the Rev. J. A. O. Preus, president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, commented on the action of the board of control of Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, in commending the entire faculty for their doctrinal stance.

The 1971 synodical convention had given the Concordia board a "report" of a fact-finding committee appointed by Preus, requesting that the board study it, then take "appropriate action on the basis of the report, commending or correcting where necessary." The "commending" meant that the board had found no false doctrine in the faculty.

Stating that the issue ought to be resolved by the synodical convention when it meets July 6-13 in New Orleans, Preus said, "It is essential . . . that all facts be made known to the church in order that all parties may be as clear in their thinking as possible." He then suggested several aspects of the seminary board's decision that the church should note.

He pointed out that the board was "less than clear in its mind as to the proper stance to take on the issues before it. As the board passed on the orthodoxy of each professor, in several cases the majority and minority differed by only one vote and in other cases by only two." He added that only one man received a unanimous vote to be commended.

"It is also striking," he continued, "that the board of control 'commended' as holding no false doctrine both the faculty majority and the faculty minority, despite the fact that the minority has charged that there are basic theological differences within the faculty and that false doctrine is involved."

To the board's statement that it did not have before it charges of false doctrine and did not consider the interview process to be an investigation of charges of false teaching, Preus pointed to the 160-page "Report of the Synodical President" based on the work of the fact-finding committee.

"This statement of the board is most difficult to understand," he wrote, "since in this formal report I noted six specific problems, the first of which reads, 'A false doctrine of the Holy Scriptures coupled with methods of interpretation which effectually erode the authority of the Scriptures.' He related that the report named Seminary President Dr. John Tietjen and asked the board to "deal personally and first of all" with him, as well as with other members of the Concordia faculty. Preus added that other persons, within and outside the seminary community, have called false doctrine to the attention of the board within the past year.

Preus said the seminary board is confusing the issue by its statement that the theological issues in question, should be dealt with in fraternal discussion.

"If theological issues are not matters of doctrine, then they do not need 'fraternal discussion.' If they are matters of doctrine, then they need to be settled prior to making any decisions 'to commend or correct,'" he added.

Preus said, "I am informed that the report of the board of control to the convention will consist of four parts: one by the board and three supplemental reports by individual members. Three of these will appear in the convention workbook and will be of interest to all delegates and members of the Synod. A special floor committee will review all the material carefully, including the many overtures which have been submitted on the subject."

"The floor committee then will recommend to the convention delegates the resolutions it deems appropriate. We pray that God will grant to the convention a double measure of His Spirit so these matters may be resolved in good order and according to His will. Then we may, once again, as united Christians and reconciled brothers and sisters, carry out our Lord's mission without distraction and with one voice."

Heavy industry zoning sought for shredder site

The Appleton Plan Commission will begin action to rezone from planned industrial district to heavy industrial district much of the Northeast Industrial Park including that portion where the planned county solid waste shredding site is located.

City Planning Director Jack Hetu informed City Clerk Elden Broehm Friday of the planned move. Hetu said the request for the change was made by City Atty. David Geen.

The city and Outagamie County have been charged in a lawsuit initiated by Ald. William Errington (15th) with, among other things, selling that site to the county for an unauthorized use. Errington is seeking to stop the sale through a Circuit Court temporary injunction, and Judge Gordon Myse will make a decision on the request by next Thursday.

The site, a 12.61-acre area located off E. Glendale Avenue just east of the city garages, is located in Errington's ward. The total amount of land proposed to be rezoned is 159 acres, basically the industrial park area east of Roemer Road, according to Hetu.

Under normal procedures, the rezoning request will probably go from the commission to the City Council next Wednesday evening as a proposal. Hetu said the informal public hearing on the proposed change will be held before the commission June 11.

Hetu said the heavy industrial zoning district (M-2) was not very restrictive about types of uses, and in fact, allowed almost any use. In contrast, the planned industrial district (M-3) allowed only "blue-chip industries" he said, such as those which didn't cause problems with noise or smoke, as well as some commercial uses.

Hetu said there would be no legal point for questioning the compatibility of a shredder operation in the M-2 district, as there apparently is in the M-3 district.

He has opposed the location of the shredder in the industrial park because he believes it is improper to locate one in an industrial park, since it isn't a tax-producing facility.

The park land, east of Roemer Road, which had been single family residential in parts of it and heavy industrial in other parts, was all rezoned to planned industrial district last October. The land west of Roemer Road has been heavy industrial for several years.

Myse had warned the city and county during the Errington complaint hearing Thursday morning that he would not be making a decision for a week, but that he would not hesitate to grant the temporary injunction sought to stop the sale of the land from the city to the county, no matter what stage the purchase arrangement was at.

He also informed the parties he considered the question of whether the deed restrictions in the land sale would be an impediment to the county's using the land for a shredder site.

William Schuh, county corporation counsel, who appeared along with Geen in opposition to the injunction, said he didn't believe the zoning change had anything directly to do with the shredder site. He said he understood the city was contemplating the change long before the legality of the shredder site sale came up.

Geen could not be reached for comment.

Town will no longer hold meetings in private home

WAUPACA — The regular monthly meeting of the Town of Farmington board will be held at 8 p.m., Monday, in the Town Hall on U.S. 10.

This will be the first time in 10 years that property owners and residents of the Town of Farmington who wish to attend the meetings of their town board will free to do so. The town supervisors have held their regular meetings at the home of Town Clerk Florence Ewald. A number of residents expressed their views at the April annual town meeting that they would like to attend meetings regularly, but felt that space at the residence office would not permit.

Annual and special meetings have been held at the hall.

By a vote of 19 to 16, residents at the annual meeting passed on a motion to hold all regular and special town meetings at the town hall.

Town Chairman Fred Jensen said at the April meeting that the change of meeting place would be cumbersome because many records the clerk kept in her home had to be looked up before any action could be taken. He also pointed out that the aging town hall's heating system would not be adequate during the cold months, but the board was instructed to install adequate, automatic heat in the hall.

"Our town has the highest real and personal property valuation of any town in Waupaca County, proportionately we pay a considerable share of taxes; there are many changes going on, population growth, new home construction, demands for new services and we should keep ourselves informed," said a resident spokesman and strong advocate of attendance at regular board meetings.

"Our supervisors and officers have done good job, they have responsibilities that too many of us know nothing about and I feel that the supervisors will welcome our interest," he added.

of the people have 20 per cent of the income.

"This is caused by improper distribution of the wealth" he said.

He noted the same situation existed with the poorer countries. Their problems could be solved by the redistribution of only 1 per cent of the gross national product of the rich countries, Biel contended. "This would speed that biological revolution."

He warned that industry "must face the moral question of poverty and inequity in the world." It must be faced, he said, "because we have the power to do it. If it can be done, it must be done."

Planners put off decision on housing

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent staff writer

WAUPACA — The East-Central Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission delayed for a month Thursday night a decision on whether to locate the agency's offices at the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh or in an office building just west of U.S. 41 at Neenah.

A special subcommittee on housing recommended the commission lease the Neenah office building, called the Smith-Pilgreen Building and located just south of the Holiday Inn.

However, the Winnebago County representatives on the commission and a spokesman from the university implored the commission to consider the UWO facilities, which would include two floors in Dempsey Hall, the main administration building.

The measure will be reconsidered at the June 7 special meeting. Outagamie County Board Chairman Russell DeLaHunt, commission chairman, revealed just prior to the lay-over vote that the commission leaders wanted the special meeting because of increased business.

The vote to lay over the decision was 23 to 8. Later in the meeting, there was an attempt to alter a restriction the commission placed on the building location in February — that it be no more than three miles from the U.S. 41-State 114 intersection — but that lost 19-12.

DeLaHunt, however, suggested the Oshkosh location could still be considered for the headquarters for the 10-county agency.

DeLaHunt and Waupaca County Board Chairman Woodrow Smith, commission vice chairman and chairman of the housing subcommittee, spoke strongly in favor of the Neenah site.

Smith said the committee unanimously had supported that site because it best fitted the needs of the commission, including providing accessibility and parking. He said he personally also was concerned the commission would lose its identity and face problems as its predecessors had, if it went into the UWO facilities.

DeLaHunt suggested his support for the Neenah facility, saying he was opposed to mixing education and planning. He said it had been mixed too often and urged that the commission stand alone on its own two feet.

"I don't want to dilute this by going into an educational facility," he said. "You're going to lose something."

birth rate in western countries started long before the zero population growth movement became fashionable.

At the same time, he said that the population explosion was just starting in many of the poorer countries because the death rate is starting to decline.

However, he said western philosophies of birth control won't function in those societies as they presently exist. "You can't control fertility in another country just because it will benefit a rich nation," he warned.

"There must be a science revolution in the country before there can be a biological revolution," Piel told his audience.

Citing some of the imbalances in today's society, Piel said that 80 per cent of the products in this country are produced by only 20 per cent of the people and that the bottom 20 per cent of the population live on only 5 per cent of the income. At the top end, 5 per cent food production technology could produce sufficient food to feed the world's population for the next 100 years.

History also has shown, he said, that production does not decrease resources. And, he added, pollution is "most complained about by those who are most enjoying its fruits."

He agreed that most pollution was "unexcusable and avoidable," but, at the same time, it is a local situation. "There is no evidence that pollution is affecting the planetary cycles," he said.

Water pollution is a serious issue, Piel said, but added that the only roadblock to its solution is the political decision to employ known technology.

Piel saw the solution to an expanding population in a more equitable distribution of wealth, rather than attempts at artificial means of birth control.

As the standard of living increases, the birth rate goes down, he said. He noted that the current decline in the

Two killed

Eugene J. Sweere, 34, Hilbert and Eugene Sloan Jr., 32, Milwaukee, were killed at about 3:30 a.m. today in a semitrailer-pickup truck collision on State 57 in the Town of Holland. Police said the Sweere vehicle swerved into the Sloan lane. (AP Wirephoto)

The publisher of Scientific American magazine predicted that technology would keep pace with demands of society to solve the problems of growing population, pollution and resource depletion.

Gerard Piel, addressing the 37th annual Institute of Paper Chemistry Executives' Conference at North Shore Golf Club Thursday night, rejected the doomsayers' predictions of "terminal misery" by 2000.

At the same time, he warned that industry and rich nations had a moral obligation to relieve poverty and suffering.

Those, he said, who want clamps on population, pollution and production are not familiar with history. He said that history has shown that population doesn't increase linearly with production.

There is little question, he admitted, that world population would double by the year 2000, but added that current

Two truck drivers die in crash

The deaths early today of two truck drivers near Greenleaf and another Friday of a Kiel man at a Milwaukee hospital raised the state's 1973 traffic fatality toll to 327, compared with 329 on this date in record 1972.

Raymond Moritz, 61, Kiel, died Friday of head injuries he received in a May 2 two-car accident at the intersection of state highways 32, 67, 57 and 149 just east of Kiel in Manitowoc County.

The truck drivers, one a 34-year-old Hilbert man, were killed instantly when their vehicles collided head-on about three miles south of Greenleaf on State 57 at 3:45 a.m. today.

Dead are Eugene J. Sweere, 1027 W. Main St., Hilbert, and Eugene Sloan Jr., 32, Milwaukee.

Brown County police said Sweere was driving a pickup truck owned by the Lunda Construction Co. of Black River Falls and was headed south on 57.

His vehicle apparently crossed the center line and entered the path of the northbound semi-trailer-truck driven by Sloan and owned by the Clairmont Transportation Co. of Escanaba, Mich.

Sweere died from a fractured skull and broken neck, while Sloan suffered a crushed hip and severe chest injuries.

Army home neighbors may get sewer service under state institution

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The problems of water and sewer service for private property owners in the neighborhood of the state-owned Grand Army Home for Veterans in Waupaca County would be resolved under a measure offered by Waupaca county representatives in the legislature.

Sen. Gerald Lorge and Rep. Francis Byers have proposed that such properties be served by the state institution, with a provision that any services from the state would be on a cost recovery basis.

Clintonville pushes ahead with new career program for students

CLINTONVILLE — The school district has pushed ahead with its goals to establish meaningful career guidance programs for its students.

The district, recently, has been planning a career exploration program at the seventh grade level for next year. The students will explore careers in agri-business and natural resources, business and office, marketing and distribution, trade and finance, health and welfare, consumer and homemaking, construction, communication and manufacturing.

The program will be a team teaching effort of the industrial arts, business education, home economics and agriculture teachers.

The senior high school will have available next year a cooperative office occupations program where girls will spend two hours a week for one semester receiving related classroom instruction and will spend those hours of the second semester working with participating businesses in the community.

An advisory committee for office occupations has been formed and had its organizational meeting in April. Serving on this committee are Mrs. Myrene Hedtke, Kenneth Waltersdorf, Mrs. Lewis Weygandt, Mrs. Delores Fandrey, and William Barribeau from the Fox Valley Technical Institute.

An advisory committee for trade and industrial occupations has also been formed. It will work closely with the industrial arts department as it develops its career development program. Serving on this committee are Lawrence McKay, Ray Rindt, Forrest Stuemppes, Al Torborg, Ken Zuleger, and Jerry Wolf from the Fox Valley Technical Institute. Nine persons from the school district attended the Governor's regional conference on Career Education Monday at the Holiday Inn, Stevens Point.

Participating were V. J. Wadleigh, superintendent of schools; Peter Feira, guidance director; Robert Danielson, vocational coordinator; Barbara Sullivan and Mary Wisnefske, students at the senior high school; the Rev. Robert Hintz, newly elected school board member; Kenneth Waltersdorf, manager, First Wisconsin Computer Center; Don Heinisch, president of FWD Corporation, and Forrest Stuemppes, plant manager of Converting, Inc.

The participant had an opportunity to become familiar with career education as an educational program, and examine ways in which the community and school can become partners in the career development of its young people.

General sessions were held on the meaning of career education, the role of state government in career education, the role of labor in career education, industry's challenge to career education, and career development as an education goal by State Supt. William C. Kahl.

Small group meetings explored the potential for school-community partnerships for guidance, awareness, planning, preparation, and placement components of career education.

Complaints, accidents reported

WAUPACA — Complaints received by the sheriff's department in April and the number of accidents on county highways numbered about the same as one year ago, according to reports given Wednesday to the County Law Enforcement Committee.

During the past month the sheriff's department received 78 complaints: 24 breaking and entering, one cleared; six thefts; two assaults; two unattended deaths; 10 family fights, four closed; four missing persons, three closed; six reports of vandalism, one cleared; four cases of disorderly conduct, three arrests made; and four cases of bad checks, three cleared.

Sheriff deputies made 13 arrests and served 77 papers.

Sheriff Loran Frazier reported that 377 adult days were spent in jail, with $1,056 collected and 12 juvenile days, for which $34 was collected. Huber prisoner fees totaled $658 and civil fees $232.

Capt. John Penney, county traffic, reported 55 accidents filed during April, bringing the total number of accidents for the year to 195, compared with 196 for the first four months in 1972.

There has been one fatality in the county to date, as there was in 1972.

Twenty-four persons were injured in the 55 accidents involving 78 vehicles during April.

The eight-man county police force made 74 traffic arrests, six criminal arrests, seven blood runs, and seven funeral escorts and assisted at 11 fires.

In addition, the officers assisted 90 motorists in trouble, responded to 331 radio calls and 34 telephone calls, and assisted the sheriff with 43 complaints and municipalities with 34 complaints. Total squad car mileage for the month was 23,612.

The committee discussed the feasibility of having a full time Emergency Government director, to replace the part time director now employed by the county. Vernon Johnson, who holds the office, received $100 from the county and $100 from the Federal Government, each month, for filling the post.

The county board may consider a proposal for a fulltime Emergency Government director at its May 15 meeting.

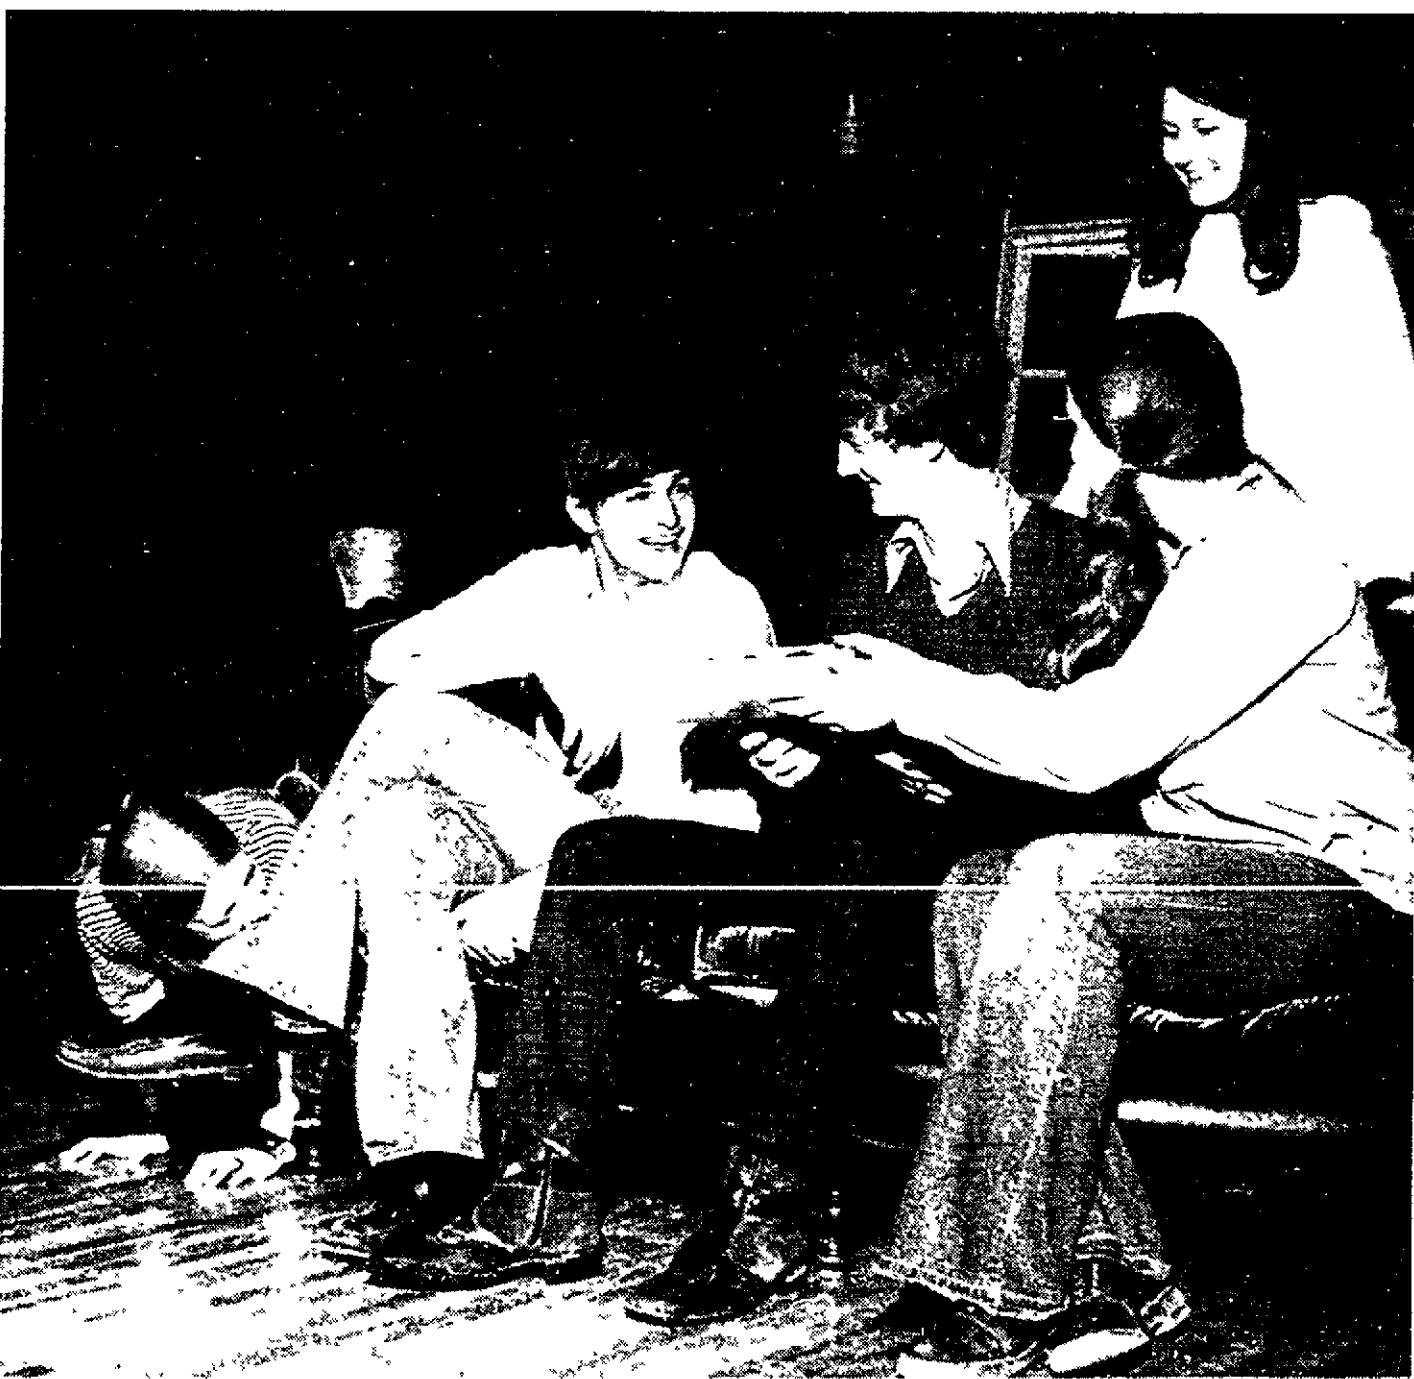

Approval was given to pay the City of Appleton $1,168 for deputy labor furnished Waupaca County in June, 1970, to control the crowd at the Iola Rock Festival. The check will be paid to Reynold L. Running, director of finance, Appleton.

A new squad car from the sheriff's department will be purchased from Wendt & Peterson Inc., Ford agency, Waupaca. That firm had the low bid of $2,203 on a Ford Galaxy. Bids were also received from Mayne Auto Sales, Marion; Volz Chevrolet, Inc., New London, and Kerm Hansen Pontiac-Oldsmobile, Inc., Waupaca.

The purchase of a 1973 Mercury, 10 horsepower, outboard motor from Badgley Leisure Center, Waupaca, at the cost of $294 was approved. This will be used with the boat recently purchased for the sheriff's department for use in rescue work.

mental agencies have taken an unprecedented series of actions with respect to these defendants," said Byrne.

But the defendants can "raise these issues when they desire," he added.

"While I would prefer to have them litigated, the conduct of the government has placed the case in such a posture that it precludes the fair, dispassionate resolution of these issues by a jury," the judge said.

The jurors, who heard more than four months of testimony in preparation for a verdict, echoed the judge's disappointment that questions raised during the trial were never answered. And most said they would have voted for acquittal.

"It pleased me that the defendants were freed," said juror Phyllis Ortman. The judge, in a harsh condemnation of the government, said it appeared that the FBI had approved the special investigation of Ellsberg and that the Central Intelligence Agency, "presumably acting beyond its statutory authority and at the request of the White House, had provided disguises, photographic equipment and other paraphernalia for covert operations."

Convicted Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt had told the Watergate grand jury, in testimony released by Byrne, that the CIA helped out with gadgets and disguises for the intruders who set out to get Ellsberg's psychiatric records.

Byrne noted that, when the government reported on Wednesday that Ellsberg had been overheard on a wiretap, the FBI said the logs and tapes of the intercepted conversations had mysteriously disappeared. The wiretaps had occurred about two years before Ellsberg's indictment in 1971.

The judge said he doubted the government would ever explain about the missing records or White House involvement or that the full truth would ever be known.

Byrne also had criticism for government officials who knew of the burglary of the psychiatrist's office and had not told the court, the defendants or any authorities.

This presumably referred to former presidential adviser John D. Ehrlichman, among others.

Ehrlichman admitted he knew about the break-in and a White House operation by Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy to investigate the Pentagon papers leak. He said he told the conspirators "not to do this again" when he heard about the break-in but took no action.

Before the disclosures came in, the judge apparently already had been disturbed with the government's suppression of documents that he said could have helped prove Ellsberg and Russo innocent.

Byrne said he had decided on dismissing the charges instead of merely calling a mistrial so that Ellsberg and Russo would not be tried again.

"Under all the circumstances, I believe the defendants should not have to run the risk ... that they might be tried again before a different jury," Byrne said.

Then there was a burst of applause, shouts and tears of joy by Ellsberg-Russo supporters, the defendants' families and a crowd of young legal aides who had worked for the defendants throughout the case.

Ellsberg's smiling wife, Patricia, said they had not yet thought of plans for the future.

Asked about the future of the case against Ellsberg and Russo, Asst. U.S. Atty. Warren Reese muttered, "It's dead."

H. Rap Brown gets 5-15 years for role in 1971 armed robbery

NEW YORK (AP) — Black militant H. Rap Brown has been sentenced to 5- to-15 years in prison for his role in the armed robbery of a Manhattan bar and the assaulting of a policeman in the shootout that followed.

Two co-defendants received similar sentences Wednesday and the sentencing of a third was postponed to give his attorneys a chance to produce new evidence.

Brown was on the FBI's "10 most wanted" list when he was arrested on a rooftop after the bar holdup on Oct. 16, 1971.

Scandal may force more open attitude

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Walter R. Mears, assistant chief of the Associated Press Washington bureau, said Friday the Watergate scandal may force the Nixon administration to be more open with the news media, the public and Congress.

Mears said Nixon "obviously is going to have to say more about Watergate" as the investigation into the affair progresses.

"This may prod Nixon into holding more general news conferences," Mears said.

"When the trauma of Watergate is over," Mears added, "we may have the open government Nixon once promised."

"Staff government may give way to the cabinet form of government," Mears said.

More stringent controls on the Central Intelligence Agency by Congress could also result, he said.

Mears spoke at a luncheon following the dedication of the new $11.7 million Vilas Communications Center on the University of Wisconsin-Madison campus.

The Washington newsman called the bugging of the Democratic headquarters "stupid" and unnecessary.

"As far as I'm concerned, there wasn't anything to be learned at the Watergate," Mears said. Besides, the Democrats were busy "doing themselves in" and polls indicated Nixon would win in a landslide.

Mears predicted it will be a long time before the truth is known about Watergate and subsequent activities regarding the bugging.

Former White House staffers may have deceived Nixon, Mears said, and that makes reporters wonder what else they haven't told him.

Mears suggested Nixon was wrong in stating that new laws are needed to ensure that there won't be a repeat of Watergate.

If laws on the books had been enforced, he said, there would not have been such an incident.

Mears said the attitude that produced Watergate was that people in power believed they knew what was best for the nation and were therefore willing to believe the end justified the means.

Mears praised the Washington Post for its role in disclosing the scandal.

"No discussion of this case can start without mention of the Washington Post," he said. "They ... deserve all of our salutes."

Mears said it is up to the news media to keep digging up the facts in the case.

"We've got to be extremely careful to pin down every angle," he said.

Werner Baum to head UWM

PLATTEVILLE, Wis. (AP) — Werner Baum, president of the University of Rhode Island, was named chancellor of the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee by a unanimous vote of UW regents Friday.

Baum, 50, is to take over the large East Side Milwaukee campus Aug. 13.

He will receive a $40,000 annual salary, regents decided.

Baum replaces the retiring J. Martin Klotsche, who will become chancellor emeritus and remain as a professor of history. His salary will be $30,500.

Baum, a meteorologist who has held teaching positions in physics and geography, became president of the University of Rhode Island in Kingston in 1968.

He is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the University of Chicago, where he received a bachelor's degree in mathematics and a master's and doctorate in meteorology.

A native of Giessen, Germany, he became a naturalized citizen in 1934. He is married and has two daughters.

Marina Oswald wins suit against government

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Marina Oswald Porter, widow of President Kennedy's accused assassin, has won a settlement of $17,729 from the government for property that belonged to Lee Harvey Oswald.

U.S. District Court Judge Joe E. Estes signed the judgment Friday.

The Warren Commission said Oswald killed President Kennedy Nov. 22, 1963, in Dallas.

Step forward for Oneida bridge

Mayor Sutherland has expressed disappointment that the Outagamie County Board turned down his request for total funding of a new Oneida Street bridge. But the county board's agreement to finance one-third of the estimated $10.5 million cost represents a big leg up for the project.

Since Appleton voters approved of the city bonding for its one-third share of the cost in a referendum last April, everything would seem to be in order. But there is a provision in the state's long bridge law which creates a problem.

The city's bonding for its share of the cost is limited to one-half of one per cent of its assessed valuation and in Appleton's case at present this means $2.6 millions, or $900,000 short of its full share.

This provision in the statute also states: "Any amount by which the share of any such unit (in this case the city of Appleton) exceeds such maximum shall be paid by the state."

The problem is that the state highway commission in the past has ignored this provision of the statute. In the case of the Mason Street bridge in Green Bay and the Ninth Street bridge in Menasha, Brown and Winnebago Counties, respectively, picked up the deficit.

Appleton's problem therefore is to persuade the highway commission to accept its responsibilities as defined in the statute, or to go to the legislature for special legislation to relieve the city from the bonding limit.

In any case Mayor Sutherland says "we're not giving up at this stage." And that is good. Actually the city has done everything it can under the law to assume its share of the cost, the county has said it will raise its third of the money, so now it's up to the state.

Mitchell, Stans indicted

Were it not for Watergate, the Vesco case grand jury indictments would rank as one of the worst political sensations in the nation's history. And it is important that the nation not regard it as some sort of sideshow to the main event.

Only after the Tea Pot Dome oil scandal of the Harding administration were two members of the Cabinet ever indicted for wrongdoing. Now former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell, who was supposed to be in charge of national law enforcement, and former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans, who was chief fund-raiser for the Nixon re-election campaign, are accused of conspiracy, influence peddling and perjury before the grand jury.

The testimony heard by the grand jury is almost like that from a bad political novel or from what goes on in old-fashioned big city machine politics. Robert L. Vesco was in big trouble with the Securities and Exchange Commission, and after Vesco made a $200,000 campaign contribution Mitchell is charged with trying to get the government to go easy on Vesco.

Then, there are the details of the contribution itself. The $200,000 was delivered in cash to Stans on April 10, 1972. This was three days after the 1971 campaign contributions reporting law went into effect, but the contribution was not reported. The cynical explanation when that came to light was that the money had been pledged before the law went into effect. To compound the story, the $200,000 was returned to Vesco last February when the contribution and Vesco's trouble with the Securities and Exchange Commission became public knowledge.

Public restraint against jumping to conclusions is now in order under the American judicial system. Charges made by a grand jury must be proved in court, and it will be many months before there is a trial.

But testimony and cross-examination in public will provide the truth. The American people should be an attentive jury, not only to weigh the charges against Mitchell and Stans but to reach some conclusions about stronger regulations and lower limits for the use of big money in presidential elections.

Winter in Colorado

Costilla County, Colorado, is in the southwest corner of that state. This last winter was a rough one. There was a lot of snow, several major blizzards, stock had to be dropped feed from the air, pipes froze, telephone lines went down and spring has been a long time in coming.

Chamber of Commerce members in Costilla County had had enough. They sought out Governor John Love. And they sent an official request that the county be allowed to secede so it could annex to New Mexico and avoid "another Colorado winter."

Governor Love acknowledged that it was probably poor staff work at the capitol that accounted for the unfavorable climate. But he asked patience and that the county authorities not consider just one bad year. Crisis was averted. And a lot of fun was had by all.

Peace at Wounded Knee

The second battle of Wounded Knee ended a little like the official war in Vietnam because neither side had much to gain from keeping it up. And just like that other fracas, there'll be disappointment over the way the agreement works out.

The occupation of the village of Wounded Knee, chosen to dramatize Indian grievances because it was the site of a massacre of Indians in the 19th Century, started 71 days before the Indians finally came out. While it was aimed at the United States Federal Government and the treatment of American Indians, it also illustrated the split among Indians. Richard Wilson, present chairman of the Oglala Sioux tribal council, vehemently opposed the occupation. His ouster was one of the unmet demands of the militants. Another council member, Bob Ecoffey, said that the episode "slowed down our progress for years . . . all the good relations the tribe had established with surrounding communities as well as credit sources, have all closed down the last few months."

The militants, members of the American Indian Movement, still insist the Oglalas have a right to a great deal more of South Dakota than they occupy but they announced that "A.I.M.'s job is done here." There will be more Wounded Knees, their leaders warned, unless the government moves to recognize Indian rights more rapidly.

Aside from the specifics of laying down arms and turning over the occupied areas, the agreement promised the Indians that five White House representatives would come within two weeks for conferences. The government would also conduct "an intensive investigation" of the operation of the reservation and would protect Indian rights against unlawful abuses by the tribal council. The Indians charged with illegal activities would have speedy bond hearings and judicial procedures.

The confrontation was notable for the restraint shown by the Federal authorities similar to that exhibited in Washington last fall when A.I.M. members seized the Bureau of Indian Affairs. Had the Wounded Knee occupation come just before election, the government probably wouldn't even have surrounded the place with weapons carriers and other signs of armed strength. But there probably is a considerable amount of guilt about the white man's treatment of the Indian in Washington. It is unfortunate that it sometimes seems to have to take such illegal dramas to get attention from a bureaucracy. Two men died and a third was paralyzed during the confrontation. This and the threat of more violence demonstrates that the action was too dangerous to be warranted.

It is unlikely that the United States Government will turn over to the Oglala Tribe the western half of South Dakota they claim as theirs under an 1868 treaty. But changes must be made. Members of A.I.M. aren't going to relax pressure and the tribal council now will realize it must work harder to justify its authority.

Lucey jumps on campaign spending issue

MADISON — The ability to accommodate posture to events and to exploit them is one of the tests of the proficiency of the politician. So Gov. Patrick Lucey has again earned a good grade in his response to the public preoccupation with the problems of money in elections.

As every literate voter ponders the profligate and dubious uses of money by the Committee to Re-elect the President as shown in the chilling disclosures from Watergate, the head of the Wisconsin Democratic party has announced that he wants a definitive inquiry into the uses of money in Wisconsin politics, with a "comprehensive legislative package" resulting.

He has also chosen David Adamany, now a member of the University of Wisconsin political science faculty, to direct the investigation and to write the report with recommendations. Adamany will start his inquiry with admirable academic credentials. He did useful work in the field as a graduate student at a time when academics generally paid little attention to such mundane matters.

Money raiser deluxe
Yet there will be those who will ask themselves, even while acknowledging his qualities, whether he can deliver a credible conclusion or acceptable recommendations in view of his own background.

Gov. Lucey as one of the state's most apt practitioners of politics doubtless is more expert in the grubby business of raising money to finance election campaigns and party machinery than anyone now holding public office in this state. He started his own political career 25 years ago, and therefore knows better than most the enormous increase in the dependence upon dollars that has come recently.

He was chairman of the Democratic state organization when it was shedding swaddling clothes. One of the reasons that it rose to competitive rank with the Republicans was the realistic acceptance of men such as himself of the uses of money in fueling politics.

Later he was the key operative here in the 1960 Kennedy campaign for the presidential nomination. Those Democrats who watched, within or without the Kennedy circle, remember it for its sophisticated and expert exploitation of campaign dollars.

As a three-time candidate for state-wide office, Lucey showed that he had learned well. Since he became governor he has demonstrated it again, with annual solicitations of funds from well-wishers through the fund raising dinner device.

Two years ago Prof. Adamany, then on leave from another school, was a part of the Lucey campaign apparatus. Today in Washington there are some reservations about the suitability of Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson as investigator of the Watergate affair. There is clamor for the selection of a totally independent and neutral outsider of stature.

Can Mr. Adamany be totally objective? No doubt he can. But will the public accept the findings of an investigator who worked at the side of the governor in an expensive campaign, who now wants an analysis for Wisconsin of political finance because it is "one of the most serious problems of our times?"

"You have an open mandate on my behalf to investigate whatever needs examination and to propose whatever must be done, no matter how sweeping, to bring the scandal of campaign finance under control," the governor wrote the professor and long-time associate of Democrats, including one other former Democratic governor.

Will Republicans be likely to answer questions about their money affairs when they are asked by a group that includes three other young men who are patronage job holders in the state Capitol by the grace of the head of the Democratic party?

Will Republicans in the legislature be inclined to give more than cursory attention to a report and recommendations for reform under such circumstances? The governor is right — if tardy — in his conclusion that this is one of the vital problems involving the health of the democratic system. But it may not have the kind of antiseptic power that is required.

Erosion threatens Everglades farms

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The rich farms in the Florida Everglades whose 700,000 acres yield $250 million worth of crops each year are oxidizing into thin air.

More than an inch of the rich topsoil is disappearing annually as carbon dioxide and water vapor. In fact, some farms where the soil was more than eight feet deep half a century ago, now have less than four feet topping.

The Everglades farms produce corn, carrots, beans, celery, radishes and leaf crops. The rich soft, black and brown soil that produces these crops is known as muckland. It was formed over a period of 5,000 years from sawgrass and other vegetation which gradually decayed.

But when muckland is drained for farming, it begins to oxidize. Acted upon by micro-organisms, the soil undergoes chemical attack that causes it to vaporize.

Once the mucklands are gone, only hard limestone is left. Scientists warn that this could eventually happen, unless some way is found to halt or at least slow down the biochemical erosion. In fact they warn that the farms could be out of business in another 30 years.

Dr. Robert G. Volk of the Florida Agricultural Research Center has been working on the erosion problem. He is studying four possible ways of halting the erosion.

Volk says that by adding clay to the soil, science might reduce the output of carbon dioxide and thus retard the loss of soil.

By sterilizing the soil, Volk says, using steam or microwaves, the micro-organism populations might be reduced.

Chemicals might be applied to reduce the soil's nitrogen content — about 3 per cent — and make the soil less inviting to micro-organisms.

Or the soil might be rebuilt by using massive amounts of treated sewage and garbage from the nearby Florida Gold Coast.

Some scientists have suggested reflooding portions of the muckland and raising catfish, crawfish and frogs, for a while.

The incentive to preserve the farms is great, since the value of the crops is expected to rise to $1 billion a year by 1980.

There is another factor. The rich soil of the Everglades acts as a storehouse for water in Southern Florida which is faced with a water-supply problem within the next decade.

France has schizophrenia

PARIS — The French government is currently suffering from an acute case of paranoid schizophrenia in the area of foreign affairs. This ailment surfaced spectacularly in reaction to Henry Kissinger's New York speech calling for a new Atlantic Charter: Le Monde, which mirrors elite opinion, had a virtual spasm with two commentaries plus editorial on the subject featured on page one. "What are the Americans up to?" was the question, and the answer broadly speaking was (in a formulation borrowed from George Ball), a "Gaullist" initiative.

To put it differently, Kissinger's speech was interpreted as a Presidential announcement that the playground was about to be closed, that the United States was in future going to play its own hand in cold-blooded fashion. Intelligent French commentators, while enjoying President de Gaulle's capers, never took Gaullism seriously. Indeed, they were always a bit puzzled that foreign leaders seemed to accept De Gaulle's image of France on his terms. When the President pulled out of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and announced that his nuclear weapons would be aimed in all directions, the informed reaction was laughter. Those nations within range to the west certainly lost no sleep anticipating nuclear attack.

Cooperation with Moscow

American "Gaullism" — which is to say the exercise of realpolitik in a wholly unsentimental fashion — would be something of an entirely different order. The simple difference is that the United States is a great power and France is not. Indeed, in terms of the power equation France has more in common with Luxembourg than it has with either the U. S. or the Soviet Union. Thus Dr. Kissinger, who is considered a dedicated disciple of Prince Metternich, is seen as the advance man for a new policy based on balance of power and, above all, on direct cooperation with Moscow.

Now we come to the paradox. For years the elite French press (which really consists of Le Monde and Figaro) has been deriding the United States for its addiction to outmoded Cold War doctrines, for its alleged conviction that the world was divided between the forces of evil (Communism) and the forces of righteousness (the Free World). We were constantly chided for not recognizing that developments within the Soviet Union opened up the possibility of detente, and of abandoning rigid bi-polarism. (The Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968 created all kinds of trouble inside the French Communist Party, but as far as most French were concerned it was a non-happening.)

Mr. Nixon's Moscow initiatives, however, had led to some second thoughts about the virtues of detente. Suddenly the French have a vision of Nixon and Brezhnev sitting at a table and dividing up the world. This would, of course, be done in the spirit of keeping the children off the streets, that is, neither Nixon nor Brezhnev would waste any time worrying about their clients or allies. The minor powers, France among them, would simply be treated as pawns on the chessboard.

This is an exaggerated conception. The present imperatives of American politics, for example, make it impossible for President Nixon to play his ace and radically cut back American military commitments. To do so would hand Senator Mansfield and the Senate Democratic "doves" victory on a platter. Yet Kissinger's speech did convey a significant message. In slightly Aesopian fashion, he was indicating that we would not sit passively on the sidelines and watch the Common Market develop into an air-tight, anti-American cartel. This is a point that the French and the other members of the E.E.C. would be wise to include in their economic computations.

It is stated by some of our State exchanges that the management of the Chicago and North Western Rail Road has decided to reduce the running time of the road between Green Bay and Chicago by two hours, making the distance in about 10 instead of 12 hours.

This will be comforting news to passengers if it proves true — as it will when the Air Line is built.

Extra fifty points are not significant

When you're not doubled and particularly when you're not vulnerable, there's not much difference between a one-trick and a two-trick defeat. You can afford to risk going down one additional trick if your line of play will improve your chance to make the contract.

West opened the queen of clubs and South had no trouble in seeing the danger. He might easily lose a trick in each suit.

All would be well if East had the king of hearts. The normal finesse would work whenever South tried it. South was on the point of trying a finesse with the queen of hearts when he saw an extra chance.

Declarer simply led a low heart from dummy and finessed with the nine from his own hand. The important thing about this play was that it might work but couldn't lose anything material even if it failed.

As it happened, West had to win the trick with the king of hearts. He returned another club, forcing out the remaining top card in that suit. South thereupon took the ace and queen of hearts, discarding the losing club from dummy.

Only then could South afford to lead a trump. The game contract was then safe.

If South had led trumps earlier, West would have developed a club trick. Then South would surely lose one trick in each suit.

Now let's look at the deep finesse in hearts. If this finesse loses to the ten or jack, declarer will get back to dummy with a club in time to finesse with the queen of hearts. If the second finesse wins, South will discard dummy's club loser on the ace of hearts.

Football widow takes lover

Dear Ann Landers: Now that the "football widows" have laid their gripes to rest (until next season), may I say a word to all wives who feel that they've lost out to the boob tube?

After 14 years of marriage, my husband made it clear that his greatest joy in life is to sit in front of the TV with a can of beer in his hand and look at football, basketball, baseball, hockey, golf and bowling tournaments, tennis, swimming meets, anything involving sports. When he wanted to talk to me he'd let me know.

After four solid months of going to bed alone and falling asleep before he turned in, I decided to respond more affirmatively to an attractive man who liked me more than he liked sports on TV. I no longer get that sinking feeling when my husband runs for the TV magazine to "see what's on."

My sexual appetite is satisfied and I've stopped biting my nails and feeling sorry for myself. Now I feel sorry for him. The dumb jerk. —Did It In Scarsdale

Dear Did: Some "solutions" can be the beginning of new and more complicated problems. To each his own.

Dear Ann Landers: You shouldn't be giving advice because you are not up on things. I kept a write-up for six months about the Texas judge who married two men. (One was dressed up like a beautiful bride and she looked very feminine.) I threw the clipping away last week and now I could kick myself.

Your statement that marriage between two people of the same sex is illegal is wrong, wrong, wrong. I want you to admit it in print.—It Happened In Texas

Dear Tex: I hope you won't take it too hard, but that Texas "marriage" was declared null and void. It's like off, dear. The judge charged misrepresentation and fraud. He later said the "bride" was prettier than the groom and he was completely fooled. As I was saying, before I was so rudely interrupted, in no state of the union can members of the same sex be legally married. Some far-out minister in California has performed several "marriage ceremonies" between homosexuals, but the state does not recognize them as valid.

Dear Ann Landers: Please speak up for the most abused people in the country—cashiers in supermarkets.

Gripe Number One: People who complain about prices or the tax on items. Don't they realize that we are not to blame? If it was up to us the prices would be lower and there would be no taxes.

Second, when we ask to see personal identification before cashing a check, they act like we are accusing them of trying to pass a bum check. They always say, "You know me. I've been coming in here for years." Of course I know them, but I need proof of identification, either the driver's license

Terrors 'Mona Siewert dominates girls track test

BY GEORGE MANCOSKY
Post-Crescent staff writer

OSHKOSH — Oshkosh North captured the team championship but little Mona Siewert of Appleton West stole the individual spotlight in the WIAA Girls Sectional track meet here Friday afternoon.

Mona, a talented sophomore speedster, who annexed three firsts in the regional meet earlier in the week, repeated that performance on the Oshkosh West track in leading her Terrors to second place.

She captured the 80-yard low hurdles in 11.0 seconds (the current state tournament record is 11.5), copped the 100-yard dash in 11.5 seconds and leaped 10 feet, tively.

The only other Fox Cities qualifiers were Kathy Bues of Neenah, on a second in the discus and the Rockette medley relay team, which also gained a second.

Fond du Lac produced a double winner in Deb Howard, who threw the discus 103 feet, 8 1/2 inches and the shot put 35 feet, 2 1/2 inches. Karen Verdegan, mile winner in 5:43.3, was the Cardinals' other qualifier.

Other firsts went to Sharon Mutchler, Portage, high jump; and Martha Marx, Oshkosh North, 440-yard dash.

The 13-event program was expanded to 14 because the 440-yard medley relay was run twice. After the initial race, it was discovered the starting blocks had been set on the wrong lines so it was decided to run it over as the final event.

Oshkosh North, which had finished fourth in the first running, came home first on its second try.

First and second place finishers in all individual events and relays earned berths in the state meet. In addition, any other efforts that equal the five best qualifying times in the state also qualify.

The summary:
Points and qualifiers — Oshkosh North 36 (3 in 3 events and 3 relays), Appleton West 28 (1 in 3), Fond du Lac 24 (2 in 3), Kimberly 23 (2 in 2 and 1 relay), Portage 23 (3 in 3), Appleton-East 19 (2 in 2), Neenah 19 (1 in 1 and 1 relay), West De Pere 18 (2 in 2 and 2 relay), Ashwaubenton 7, Oshkosh West 4 (1 in 1), Beaver Dam 3, Kaukauna 2.

Russell to coach Sonics

SEATTLE (AP) — Bill Russell, whose National Basketball Association career spanned 13 years and 11 championships, has returned to the NBA's active-duty list as coach and general manager of the Seattle SuperSonics.

The Sonics announced Friday that the former NBA all-star and player-coach had been signed by Sonics President Sam Schulman to a five-year contract, reported to be in the yearly salary range of $125,000.

"Sam made me an offer I couldn't refuse," Russell commented through his attorney, Richard Covey of Los Angeles. Russell was unavailable for further comment.

"It was just a question of him being available," Schulman said, "getting finished with the playoffs and it was a very pleasant negotiation."

Schulman reportedly has been negotiating off and on with Russell for months about the position, while Russell, as recently as Thursday, denied any interest in it. Russell, a 6-foot-9 All American from the University of San North, with the help of first places in all three relay events, compiled 36 points. West collected 28, Fond du Lac 24 and Kimberly and Portage 23 to complete the top five.

Kimberly qualified Martha Strick and Gerty Van Lih, who finished one two in the 880 yard run. Strick won in 2:34.5 and edged Van Lih at the tape. The latter was just a half step ahead of Neenah's Barb Nault.

The Papermakers also qualified their 880 yard relay team, which was nipped by one-tenth of a second by North at the finish.

Appleton East will be represented at the state meet at Merrill next Saturday by Mary Ann O'Connell and Mary Claypool, who were second in the hurdles and 220-yard dash, respec-

Bill Russell

Francisco, retired as player-coach of the Boston Celtics in 1969 and joined the American Broadcasting Company as color commentator on its NBA Game of the Week.

Russell became the first black coach in the NBA when he succeeded Red Auerbach at Boston in 1967. He joins Wayne Embry of the Milwaukee Bucks as its only black general managers.

He'll have "full rein" over the team, Schulman said.
"He's going to be coach and general manager, and I've always pursued the policy of giving the coach and general manager full reign," Schulman commented at his Los Angeles headquarters.

"While keeping reporters at arm's length, Russell went ahead with his regular radio talk-show program Friday evening and was questioned by several listeners about his move to Seattle."

"I think the guys should be introduced to each other," Russell said of the Sonics, "and make sure they all have on the same uniforms."

Russell—quipping with most of the callers — said the team could be a "strong one" "if they survive... training." The shakeup in the Sonics' management began in midseason with the firing of Coach Tom Nissalke, who was replaced on a temporary basis by Morris "Bucky" Buckwalter. Buckwalter also took over as temporary general manager with the resignation two weeks ago of Bob Houbregs.

Nissalke was fired after compiling a record of 13 victories and 32 losses. The year before, player-coach Lenny Wilkens had taken the Sonics to within just a few games of the NBA playoffs.

Patriots win Hale track invitational

WEST ALLIS — Paced by record setters Dave Malley and Tom Kunstman, Appleton East dominated the field at the annual West Allis Hale track invitational Friday night.

"Malley toured the half-mile circuit in 1:55.6 to knock two-tenths of a second off the record. Kunstman ran the 330-yard intermediate hurdles in a record 42.1 seconds."

"The Patriots amassed 75 points to second place West Allis Hale's 45."

"Kerry Frank won the 100 and 220 events for the Patriots and anchored the victorious East 880 relay team. Also running on the 880 relay unit were Don Mowry, Steve Schimke and Mike Denil."

"Other victories for East were posted by Jim Vandenberg in the triple jump and Tom Hopfensperger in the two mile. Jeff Stracka and Andy Oliver trailed Hopfensperger across the finish line to give East a virtual sweep in the two mile."

A strong wind and cool temperatures hindered some performers.

Sox 'Big 2' view 14th loss

BY JOHN L. PAUSTIAN
Post-Crescent sports editor

Glen Miller and C. V. Davis, the "Big 2" of the Chicago White Sox minor league system, turned up at Goodland Field Friday night to find out if their Class A Midwest League farm club could be as bad as it's record indicates.

The answer was yes.
Four Appleton pitchers allowed 15 hits, and Foxes fielders tossed in five errors for good measure, enabling Cedar Rapids to make off with a 10-3 triumph. The Foxes thus completed the third week of their 1973 campaign without a victory, and their record loss streak grew to 14 games.

The Foxes, who begin a 5-day road trip at Clinton tonight, looked sharp for the first three innings as right-hander Santiago Guzman dueling the Astros' Jose Sosa to a standstill. However, the third out of the third frame seemed to have been the turning point for Appleton. Art Gardner drove a smash off Guzman's legs, but Santiago retrieved the ball to throw him out.

When Guzman came out for the fourth, his effectiveness was somewhat impaired. However, three errors behind him contributed to his downfall as the Astros took a never-to-be-surrendered lead. Rafael Tatis was safe on shortstop Lister Lesprier's bobbie, but he was forced by Fred Mims. Steve Englishbey hit to Lesprier who threw past first. Catcher Joe Cook, backing up firstbase, grabbed the ball and threw wildly to the plate for the second error on the play, allowing a run to score. Neil Rasmussen scratched a hit to score the second run, and after a stolen base, Bill Melendez' single to right produced run No. 3.

Cedar Rapids put it out of reach early as it scored four more times in the fifth for a 7-0 bulge. Four of the first five batters hit safely to end Guzman's stay and bring on Kurt Best. Alfredo Javier started the whole thing with the second of his three consecutive doubles. Gardner, Tatis, Englishbey and Al frame's final run scored on an overthrow by center fielder Nylis Nyman.

An RBI single by Gardner and a bases-loaded wild pitch by Best brought in another pair in the sixth for a 9-0 lead.

The Foxes found the scoring key in their half of the sixth as they chased three runs across. Rick Carrow led off with a safe bunt. Joe Pomykala was retired on a fine running catch in right field by Javier. Postell Johnson singled to left and Cook struck out. Pinch-hitter Gary Whaley rapped a run-scoring single to left. Nyman drew a base-filling walk. Lesprier belted a hard grounder off the third baseman's glove into left field, for a 2-run single.

Bob Stolarick left two men stranded as he fled out to end the uprising. It climaxed the marooning of eight Foxes

Bridges joins Foxes

The Chicago White Sox assigned Bobby J. Bridges to the Appleton Foxes, the Appleton club announced today.
Bridges, a second baseman or shortstop, will join the Foxes in Clinton for the game against the Pilots.

Brewer boots assist Tigers' 6-5 victory

DETROIT (AP)—Normally if a team is lucky enough to get five runs off Mickey Lolich it will win.

"But only if the other team doesn't get six," offered Milwaukee Manager Del Crandall after his Brewers lost 6-5 to Lolich and the Detroit Tigers Friday night before a Tiger Stadium crowd of 12,415.

Rarely do Tiger bats give Lolich so many runs with which to work.

Actually, Brewer boots helped just as much this time, as two Milwaukee throwing errors paved the way for four runs to help send starter Jerry Bell to his third loss against four triumphs.

"We kept him in trouble all the time," Crandall said of Lolich, who had lost four of his five previous decisions. "But it doesn't do any good when you don't play well."

He said Bell "was all right. We just didn't play well behind him."

Lolich couldn't shake a bad cold but he did shake his slump, and now the American League East is shookup once again.

And once again the "surging" Tigers are on top of the pack, having supplanted the Brewers on the "strength" of Lolich's 10-hit complete game.

Lolich had lost his other three complete games by scores of 2-1, 2-1, and 1-0 and was off to one of the worst starts in his 11-year major league career.

However, "Lolich is too good to worry about," Tiger Manager Billy Martin said of the skid.

"I've been pitching too long to let things get to me," was Lolich's own reaction to the poor start.

"If we scored the normal two or three runs I'm beat. I lost again," the easy-going southpaw said.

Two spectacular catches by third baseman Aurelio Rodriguez, who seemed determined to make up for a costly first-inning error, helped destroy Brewer hopes.

Rodriguez made a diving, belly-flop stop of a seemingly sure George Scott single in the third inning, then threw him out. It ended the inning and saved a run, since Don Money was on second with a double.

In the ninth Rodriguez made virtually an identical play on Dave May's leadoff attempt in the ninth. Moments later Scott unloaded a solo homer, his fifth, for the Brewers' last run.

"I feel lousy," Lolich said, relaxing in the clubhouse. "I've got the worst damn cold in the world."

But he was smiling.

Woodie Fryman, 2-2, was to pitch for Detroit today against Jim Slaton, 1-2, of the Brewers—who were knocked into a tie for third with Boston yet are just one-half game behind the Tigers. Baltimore, a 3-0 victor over New York, is second, two percentage points out.

"I hope it stays that way all year, unless maybe we take a 10-game lead," Milwaukee Manager Del Crandall said of the race.

He was very displeased with his team's performance in the error-filled game. But...

"If we go another 26 games without one like this we'll be all right."

Smith, Ashe battle way into WCT championship

DALLAS (AP) — Arthur Ashe and favored Stan Smith have battled their way into an all-American final of the World Championship of Tennis and Ashe says Sunday's match for the $50,000 first prize will be "two double-barreled shotguns at 28 feet."

Ashe stunned defending champion Ken Rosewall 6-4, 6-2, 5-7, 1-6, 6-2 in a marathon 2 hour, 47 minute semifinal Friday night after Smith had crushed another Australian, Rod Laver, 4-6, 6-4, 7-6, 7-5.

Smith, a former Southern California star, has won more than $100,000 in his first year on the WCT tour. Ashe went to croststown rival UCLA.

"We've only played three times since 1970 and I've beaten him every time," Ashe said. "He's one of my best friends."

Ashe and Smith displayed bullet serves in ousting the Australian contingent. Rosewall had beaten Laver for the WCT title the only other two times it has been decided. The Aussies meet today in a consolation match for the $10,500 third place prize.

Both the 29-year-old Ashe and Rosewall played in five-set matches Thursday
